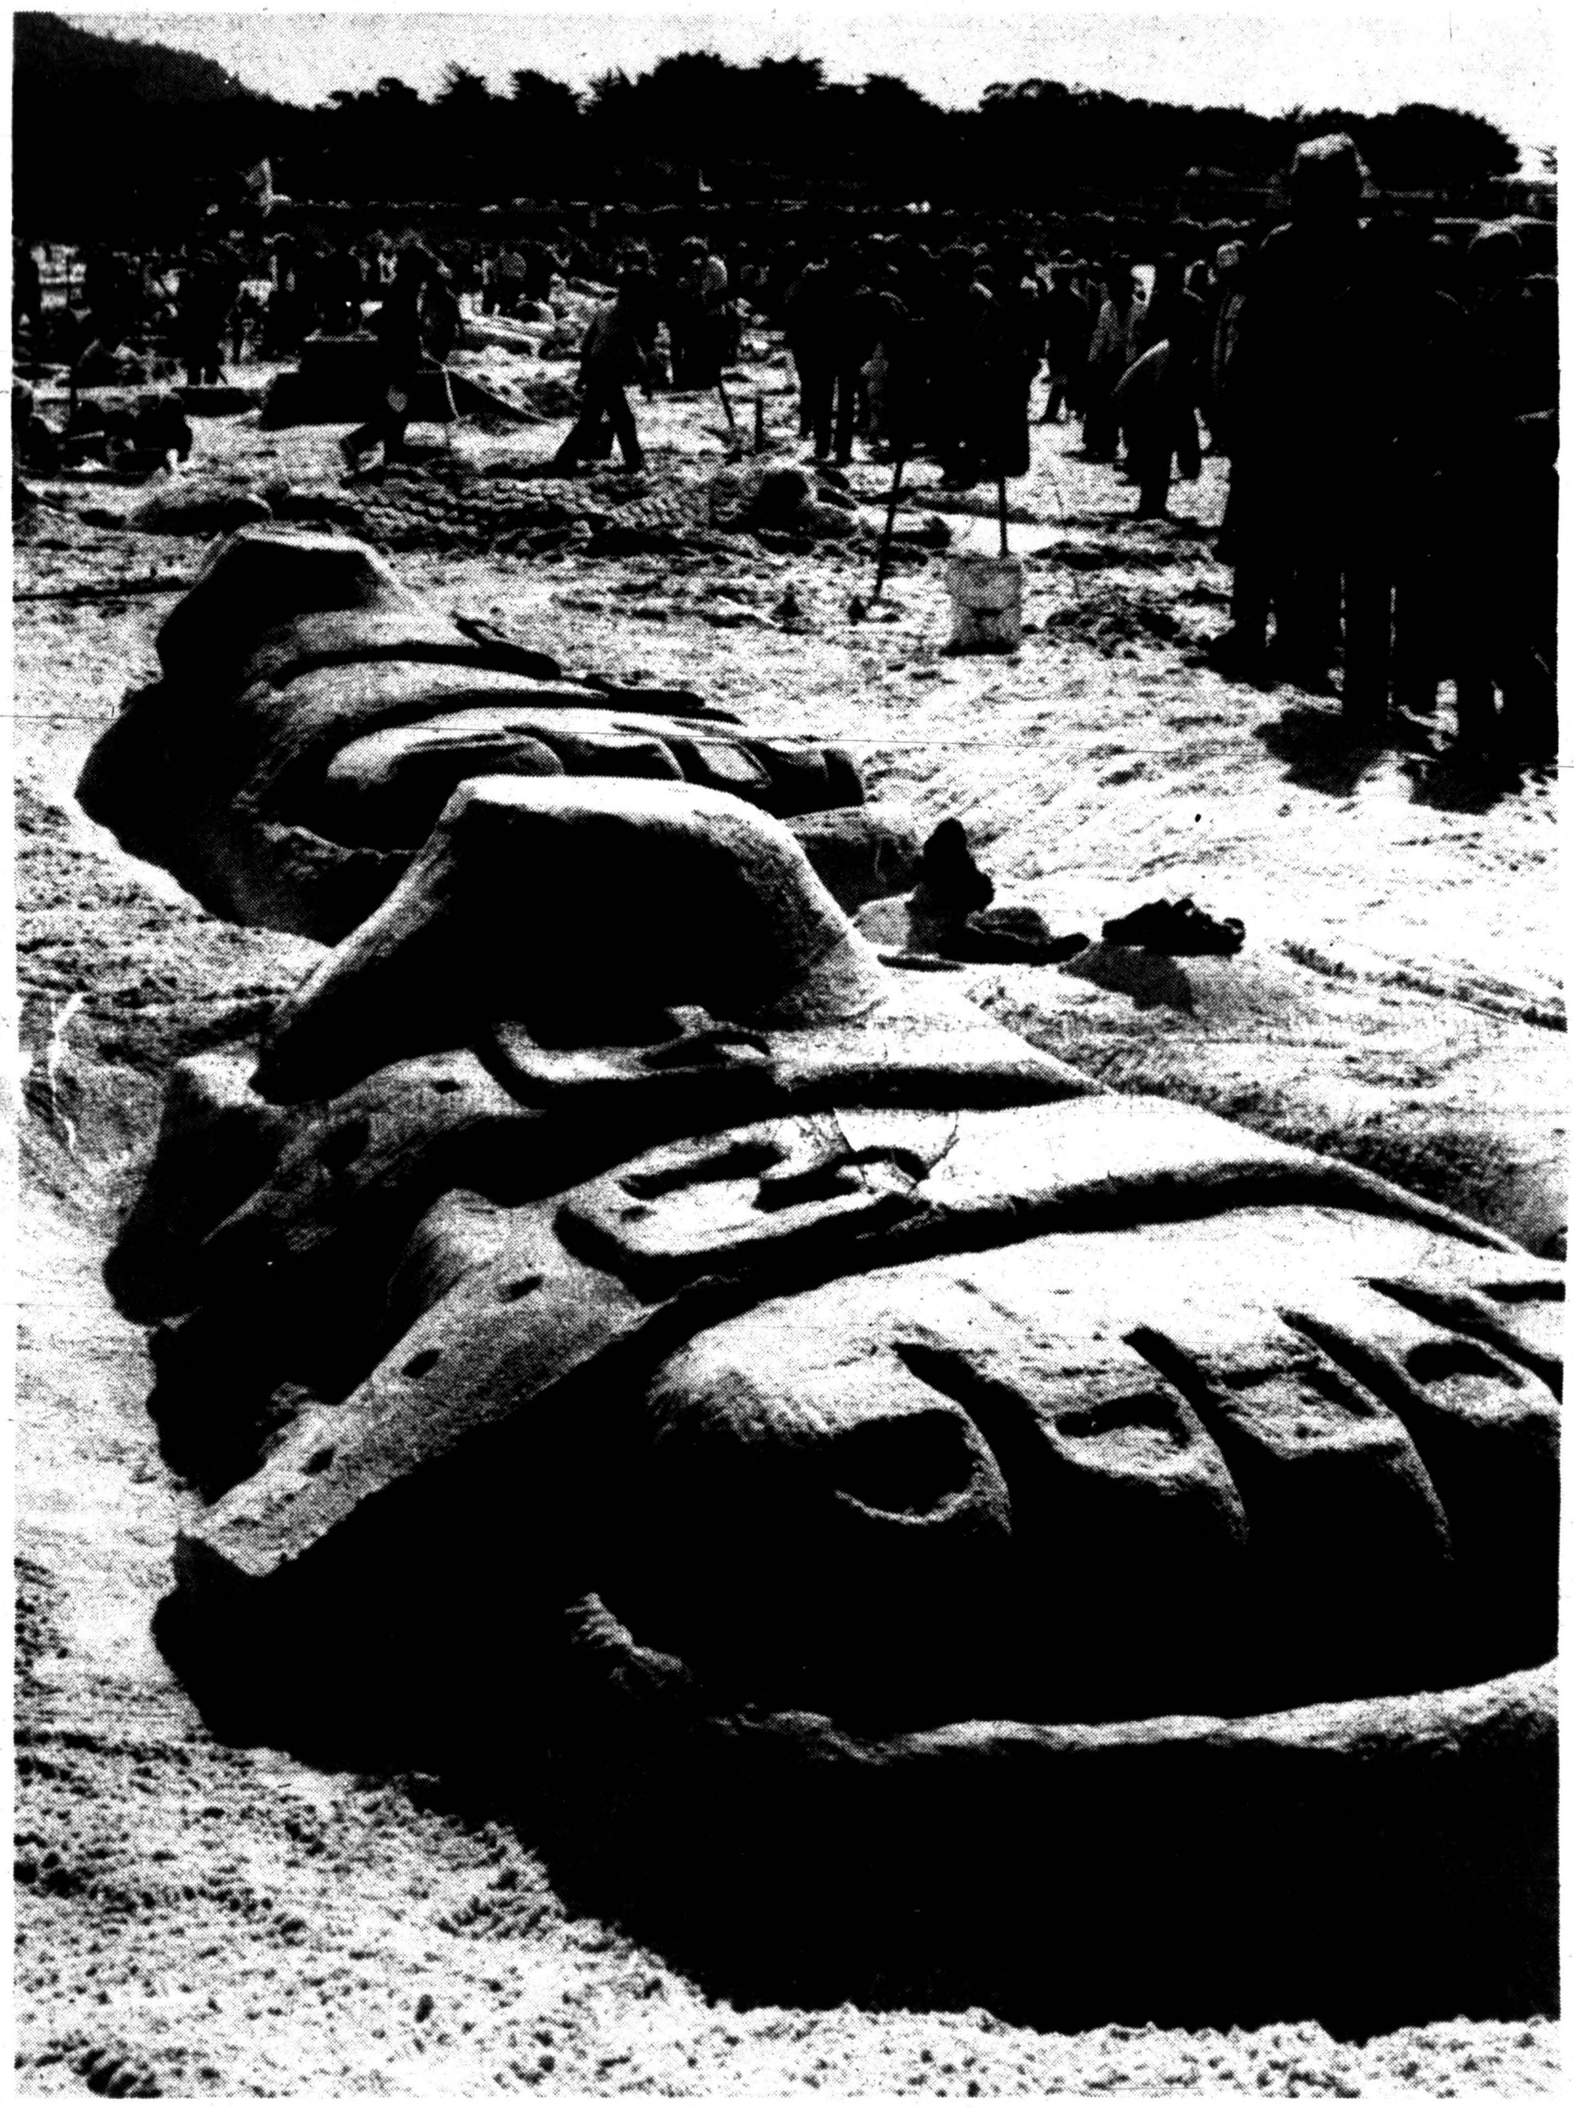
The Carmel Pine Cone

and Carmel Valley Outlook

OUR 68TH YEAR, NO. 41 — OCT. 7, 1981



THE GREAT CARMEL Sand Castle Contest is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 10 this year, sponsored by the Monterey Bay Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. This annual event, which somehow manages to draw large crowds despite efforts to keep its date secret, will have a theme this year of "Celebration of the 125th Anniversary of the American Institute of Architects." Last year's sand castle contest produced these gigantic, sandalled feet as one entry. Each year, the creations are marked by whimsy, imagination and humor. Judging is at 2 p.m. For full details, see story on page 10. (Alan McEwen photo).

Council moves toward senior housing

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL City Council has taken the first steps toward construction of low-cost housing for senior citizens.

The council Tuesday directed City Administrator Douglas Peterson to see if there is a more suitable location than two city-owned parcels of land between Fourth and Fifth Avenues on Dolores Street.

Council members are concerned about possible conflicts with city zoning if senior citizen housing is constructed there — possibly in a joint venture with an organization such as the Carmel Foundation.

But the clear indication from council members is that they are ready to do something to provide more affordable senior citizen housing. If the two city-owned parcels can be traded for more suitable land, some council members said they would favor that approach.

If not, then the Dolores Street location would be preferable to doing nothing about senior housing, in the view of Councilman David Maradei.

Councilman Maradei noted that the zoning in the area of the two city lots — catercornered from the Carmel Post Office — is R-1 (single-family residential), and asked:

"Is this where we want to construct senior citizen housing? We might want to pursue trading this property with someone who has land zoned for it."

Mayor Charlotte Townsend noted that the city parcels are located between two senior housing projects operated by the Carmel Foundation — Haleltine Court at Fifth Avenue and Lincoln Street and Trevett Court between Fourth and Fifth Avenues on the east side of Dolores Street.

Kelly's facts confused

Dear Editor:

So Michael Kelly is ready for another big battle on Hatton Canyon according to the Aug. 26 issue of the Carmel Pine Cone, is he? Well, he's going to get one and that he is bound to lose because he seems to be unable or unwilling to recognize the truth.

His principal argument as he laments loudly against his wailing wall seems to be that the Hatton Canyon "Freeway," he uses as a scare word to evoke an image of acres of concrete interspersed with vast interchanges and cloverleafs of the Los Angeles-San Jose type, will destroy the environment. If he had bothered to listen to Webb Beckstead, deputy director, CalTrans, District 5 in San Luis Obispo at a meeting of his own committee in the Monterey City Library, last July he would have learned otherwise.

Beckstead carefully explained that the Hatton Canyon project as it has been developed by the district office is a scenic parkway designated as a "freeway" only because it has no access roads to obstruct the even flow of traffic. In his statement in the Aug. 26 issue of the Pine Cone, Kelly is quoted as proclaiming, "Most of the board of directors are against rescinding the Hatton Canyon Freeway because their backyards are up against Highway 1."

Careful inspection of assessor's maps from the Old California Title Company reveals that there are in fact, 106 lots of homeowners with backyards up against Highway 1, but not one of them belongs to the board of directors of the Sierra Club. These 106 homeowners are part of Kelly's self-interested group. This group includes thousands of other residents of California taxpayers contributing to the highway system who are subject to the intolerable congestion and dangerous conditions on Highway 1. But apparently Mr. Kelly is more concerned about birds than he is about people.

To further quote Kelly in the Pine Cone article, "I'm a general contractor and I'm fighting the freeway because I believe in what I'm doing environmentally. I'd make a ton of money if that freeway went through. The environment is more important to me than business."

Very self-sacrificing of Kelly we are sure, but has he considered the effect on the environment of cutting down 300 mature trees adjacent to Highway 1, if the state's right-of-way is rescinded and existing Highway 1 is widened to six or seven lanes? Moreover, 280 trees must be removed if the Highway is widened to four lanes.

Kelly further states: "Personally I would like the canyon from north of Carmel Valley Road through the canyon as open space. That property is worth from $1 million to $20 million. I'm sure the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District would want the property, if the funds were available."

Now, between $1 million and $20 million leaves quite a lot to the imagination, which Kelly uses freely in the article in place of hard facts and figures. A more precise estimate is presented in a Feb. 9, 1982, report of the District 5, CalTrans office in San Luis Obispo as follows:

"Accordingly, the Hatton Canyon right-of-way is estimated to have a reasonable obtainable disposal value of about $5.4 million. With more favorable growth and zoning policies, the disposal value could be significantly increased."

Where would this kind of money come from? Kelly says he is sure the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District would want the property if the funds were available, a mighty big "if."

In fact, we found that Kelly contacted a representative of the regional park district on this matter and he, Kelly, was told that the district's policy was not to become involved in the issue until a decision was made on the recission. In view of this fact, it is strange that Kelly is so sure the park district would want this property, at whatever price.

Most amazing about Kelly's opinion on the rescission is that he is not only opposing the "self-interest" of thousands of residents of the Monterey Peninsula, but his own. If the state's right-of-way through Hatton Canyon is rescinded the law states that the first offer to purchase the property from the state must be a public agency.

There is no public agency that has given any indication that it would pay anywhere near the $5.4 million CalTrans estimated as the value of the property, and if a public agency did buy the property it comes out of the pockets of the taxpayer.

However, there are plenty of "greedy developers" who would be willing to pay that kind of money, and either sub-divide the property into a residential area, or worse, construct yet another shopping center, complete with a motel complex, gas stations, restaurants, and supermarkets. With the only relief from traffic congestion through Hatton Canyon gone, what a nightmare Highway 1, widened or unwidened, would become then!

The magnanimous Kelly is willing to suffer any hardship in his concern for the environment. "I'd rather sacrifice a half-hour a day waiting in a traffic jam to control growth," he says. All very well, but what about the thousands of other citizens going to and from work or school every day who are delayed by bumper-to-bumper traffic during the ever lengthening rush hours? Is the remote possibility that bald eagles might find a habitat in Hatton Canyon worth all this to anyone other than Kelly?

Let us not be deceived by Kelly's hypocritical pose as a martyr for the environment. His opposition to the Hatton Canyon Parkway may best be described as "for the birds."

Rodeos are 'humane'

Dear Editor:

Rodeo in town! With all the talk about cruelty, one would think that the Carmel Valley Rodeo Association is nuking whales, or clubbing baby harbor seals to death. The humane aspects of a rodeo are much too emotional an issue to be debated fairly, therefore the only way to duscuss the subject is to deal with the facts.

It is a fact that the rodeo is a commercial sport, with professional competitors whose living depends on a quality event. Rodeo producers must therefore provide the best, healthiest, highest performing stock they can to remain in business. This writer cannot venture a guess as to how much 'animal welfarists' actually know about animals but he can guarantee that good rodeos are not produced by abusing, mistreating or terrifying livestock.

Bucking stock must want to buck or they simply won't do the job. A bucking horse or bull cannot be made to buck if it doesn't have the desire. Most bucking horses are older and have a longer life than the average working horse because of the good care and easy life they live. Working seconds a week for 30 to 40 weeks a year, good feed and care is a life any animal could benefit from. That amounts to about minutes of actual work per year.

The Professional Rodeo Cowboy's Association (PRCA) and its stock contractors go to great length to take good care of the stock and prevent any mistreatment. No one can do well in the rodeo business with unhealthy or injured animals. The Carmel Valley Rodeo has an official rodeo veterinarian who will be present during the rodeo, watching over the animals to assure their best care. He has worked with the Monterey County SPCA and has their interests in mind.

Why we decided to sell the Pine Cone/Outlook

By AL EISNER, EDITOR EMERITUS

WHY DID Judy and I decide to sell the Pine Cone/Outlook?

After 13 years of newspapering in the Carmel/Carmel Valley area, we decided the time had come to enjoy the fruits of our labors.

During those long years, we both toiled to produce the highest quality newspapers. Although we enjoyed our work immensely, and reaped the financial rewards, there was a steep price to pay.

I remember countless evenings spent writing articles, editing copy, pasting up pages, taking pictures, attending endless meetings of government bodies to report and comment on their deliberations.

While friends were playing golf and tennis or enjoying other leisure activities — we worked. We spent thousands of volunteer hours laboring on behalf of civic and cultural organizations. I could be found most evenings and part of almost every weekend at the office.

Our vacations were few and far between. The only time we ever vacationed with our children (who are now 13 and 15) was a five-day trip to Hawaii about four years ago. The only vacation Judy and I ever took together was a trip to the Middle East a couple of years ago.

It isn't that we're workaholics. To the contrary, Judy is crazy about horses, and I've got many other interests. It's simply that it took immense personal effort to publish the kind of quality newspapers that we would be satisfied with ... the kind of newspapers of which Carmel could be proud. That takes a lot of hard work. We were ably assisted by many talented people, but because our standards were so high, we were committed to intense personal involvement in the business.

Maybe we aimed too high. I don't know. I pursued my life's work the only way I knew how, though.

•

LATE LAST YEAR I suffered a detached retina in my right eye. I endured three separate operations, which turned out to be unsuccessful. During the long months of my recuperation I had lots of time to reflect on what we were doing and where we were going.

After long and serious consideration, we decided to seek a buyer who would be equally concerned about maintaining the quality of the newspapers as he would be about preserving the quality of life in the Carmel/Carmel Valley area. The potential buyer would also have to live here and operate the company personally.

We found the ideal buyers, we think, in Bill and "Chip" Brown. They have proven their ability to produce a quality newspaper as owners of the Monterey Peninsula Herald and the Monclarion, a weekly newspaper that serves a high-income area in the Oakland/Berkeley hills.

Bill and his lovely wife, Elizabeth, have already found a home in Carmel. They love it here. They intend to become involved in the community.

Nobody can ever really "own" the Carmel Pine Cone — or any other honest community newspaper. It is owned by its readers and by the community it serves. The persons who carry the responsibility to publish the newspaper are only keepers of a tradition.

After many lengthy discussions with the Browns, we are certain they intend to continue — and improve — the tradition of excellence that has won thousands of loyal readers for the Pine Cone/-Outlook.

Judy and I will help the Browns during the transition period. As a matter of fact, the Browns have bestowed the title of Editor Emeritus on me, and have asked me to continue writing a column of commentary for the paper. I've agreed to do that, which will undoubtedly be good news to our friends but bad news to some others.

Both Judy and I will be writing other articles for the paper from time to time. The Browns have stated that they want to take advantage of the perspective we have acquired after so many years of close study and involvement with this community.

Judy will spend most of her time at our equestrian center in Carmel Valley. We are planning some travel. I hope to be able to sail to Hawaii and Mexico.

Remember all those splendid pet columns that Judy has written over the years? I plan to edit them and sell the work as a hardcover book for serious pet owners. A nationally-known illustrator wants to take part in the project and a couple of major publishers are interested.

One of my fondest fantasies is to rent a big, gas-eating camper and tour the national parks of the West with my family. The kids have grown so fast, though, that they might want to do something else — maybe even without their parents!

Judy and I are going to New York early in November for a happy family occasion. Friends have gotten us tickets for the Metropolitan Opera, the New York Philharmonic and two hit Broadway shows. I expect to soak up a lot of good jazz. And Judy will have plenty of time to explore New York's fabulous stores.

•

WE'RE EXCITED about it. We're also a little apprehensive about the future.

Our apprehension is whether we can ever find any other work which is as stimulating and personally rewarding as the newspaper business. We are certainly too young to "retire."

But we face the future eagerly and with anticipation. We are about to embark on what we hope will be the greatest adventure of our lives.

Carmel Foundation ready for senior housing

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL FOUNDATION will "proceed immediately" with construction of low-cost senior citizen housing if the city of Carmel donates two parcels of land on the west side of Dolores Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

But the Foundation is also willing to explore other possible joint ventures with the city in an effort to meet the demand for low-cost housing, said Dr. Robert Aurner, president of the board of directors.

"If they make this an outright gift with no strings attached, we'll proceed immediately to construct a $750,000 low-rent housing project for seniors," Aurner told the Pine Cone/ Outlook.

Aurner said the Foundation would also consider a long-term lease of the property from the city, but said the Foundation traditionally has avoided involvement with governmental agencies.

"I have a feeling there's a sentiment on the city council they really must do something to move on this housing thing, whether they want to or not," Aurner said.

'I have a feeling there's a sentiment on the city council they really must do something to move on this housing thing, whether they want to or not,' Aurner said.

The Carmel City Council was to consider a possible joint venture to provide senior housing on city-owned property at its Oct. 5 meeting.

Aurner said the Foundation would seek funds from the public or from a charitable organization to finance construction of as many as 20 units of low-cost rental housing, if an agreement can be reached with the city for use of the land.

"We'll stage a public appeal to raise the funds," Aurner said. "We would build a two-story, low-profile, very handsome building with between 20 and 22 units for the very low income brackets."

Carmel voters expressed overwhelming support for construction of low-cost senior housing in an advisory ballot measure in 1980, Aurner noted.

"We have very, very strong community support," Aurner said. "In the Measure F plebescite, there was a 70 percent vote in favor of senior housing."

Aurner said he has had two "very, very cordial" meetings with Mayor Charlotte Townsend on the issue of senior citizen housing and said indications are that the council is ready to grapple with the issue.

"We would consider whatever proposal the city makes," Aurner said. "We hope to avoid entanglement with government agencies. If we made a drive for public funds, we would be very democratic and not discriminate geographically in terms of who could rent."

The Carmel Foundation has operated 21 units of low-cost housing for senior citizens since 1964, with admission based on income eligibility, Aurner said. Applicants are screened by an admissions committee.

•

BETTY PLANK, executive director of the Carmel Foundation, said rents at the two senior citizen housing projects operated by the Foundation range from $100 to $125 per month.

"Most of the units are studios, but we have five one-bedroom apartments," Mrs. Plank said. "The Foundation subsidizes the rentals at about $16,000 per year. We just spent more than $45,000 for maintenance expenses.

"We're open to listen to ideas from the city," she said. "We've developed a small fund to get the ball rolling to do a fund drive, if we have a project. Between August of 1981 and August of 1982, 74 people came in to the Foundation absolutely desperate for housing because they were being kicked out of their places."

In a letter to the city council, special counsel Sidney Morris suggested several alternatives for the city to provide low-cost senior housing.

"The most obvious approach would be for the city to joint venture the construction of the low-rent senior housing with some private or public agency," Morris wrote. "The obvious result of this approach is that the city and the joint venturer will find themselves in the midst of a myriad of operational problems."

There are two other approaches which would obviate the complications of a joint venture project, Morris indicated. The first would be for the city to construct and operate the housing. The other would be for the city to lease the property on Dolores Street to an organization, such as the Carmel Foundation.

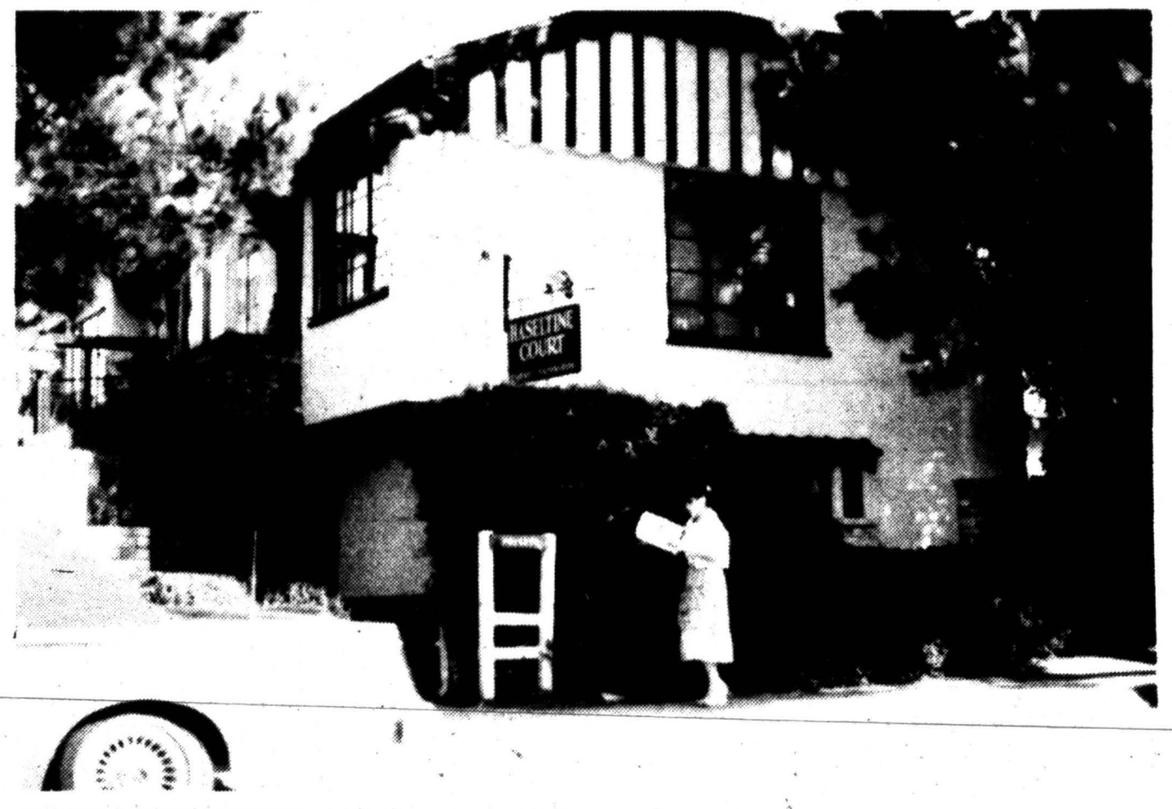
Under the first alternative, "the city would find itself involved in the day-to-day operations of senior citizen housing with all of the problems that arise out of that situation. The city would probably have to hire a full-time professional staff to run the project.

" In effect, you would find yourself in the same situation as you would in the joint venture, except you would have no one to share the operational burden with you," Morris wrote.

Measure F, which sampled voter support for senior citizen housing, appears broad enough to permit the city council to enter into a long-term lease of the property with an agency, such as the Carmel Foundation, according to Morris.

Morris said several issues would have to be resolved if the city decides to pursue a long-term lease of the property:

- Must the project go out to public bid?
- How does the city insure that the operator will provide "low rent" senior housing?
- What should be the length of the lease period?
- What type of zoning should apply?



HASELTINE COURT, which was a motel before it was purchased for senior citizen housing by the Carmel Foundation, is located at Fifth Avenue and Lincoln Street in Carmel.

TREVETT COURT, one of two subsidized low cost housing projects for senior citizens operated by the Carmel Foundation, is located between Fourth and Fifth avenues on the east side of Dolores Street. It provides nine units of housing, but there is a demand for much more low cost housing, according to officials of the Foundation.

CVPOA board will debate the Hatton Canyon Freeway

THE CARMEL VALLEY Property Owners Association Board of Directors will poll its membership on the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway.

Directors are expected to recommend to the CVPOA membership that it support construction when they meet at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 13 at Carmel Middle School.

The poll will outline the various alternatives to the freeway, including widening of Highway 1 from Carpenter Street to Carmel Valley Road, said CVPOA President Dick Dalsemer.

"The board will recommend support for the freeway to the membership, but will not take a formal position until after the results of the poll are tabulated," Dalsemer said.

The State Department of Transportation has announced its intention to rescind the Hatton Canyon Freeway project and sell the right-of-way, since the estimated $17 million required for construction is not expected to be available for 15 to 20 years.

The State Transportation Commission tentatively has set a public hearing on the proposed rescission for February, to be held on the Monterey Peninsula at the request of various local governments.

Browns purchase Carmel newspapers from Eisners

CARMEL COMMUNICATIONS Corp., publishers of the Carmel Pine Cone/Outlook and the Monterey Peninsula Review weekly newspapers, has been sold to two brothers from Oakland.

W.A. "Chip" Brown and Bill Brown, who publish the weekly Montclarion in Oakland, purchased the corporation from Al and Judy Eisner of Carmel Valley. The sale was effective Sept. 30.

The Eisners came to the Carmel area in 1969 where they worked for the Carmel Pine Cone and Carmel Valley Outlook weekly newspapers. They left the papers in 1973 to establish the Monterey Peninsula Review, an entertainment and tourist-oriented publication.

'I am looking forward to the new challenge of maintaining the quality and integrity long-known to readers of this newspaper. I plan to uphold the traditions of the Pine Cone/Outlook,' Bill Brown said.

The Eisners purchased the Pine Cone and Outlook in 1977. The two papers were merged into one weekly publication in 1981.

The Eisners, who will both continue to contribute frequent columns and stories to the papers, plan to travel and spend time with other business pursuits. (See "The publisher's column" this issue.)

Bill Brown has been named editor and publisher. His brother, Chip, will remain in Oakland to handle family business interests in the East Bay area. Al Eisner was named to the newly-created title of editor emeritus.

The brothers also own a monthly publication in the Orinda area and an advertising shopper in west Contra Costa County.

"I am looking forward to the new challenge of maintaining the quality and integrity long-known to readers of this newspaper," Bill Brown said. "I plan to uphold the traditions of the Pine Cone/Outlook of in-depth coverage of the Carmel and Carmel Valley communities.

"I also want to maintain our relationships with civic and community leaders and I plan to become active in helping the communities wherever and whenever possible," he continued.

Bill Brown and his wife, Elizabeth, have made their home in Carmel. His stepdaughter, six-year-old Emily, has also visited Carmel several times and looks forward to coming here again.

The Brown family has a tradition of journalism. Their father, Warren Brown Jr., started working on the daily Richmond Gazette as a paperboy. He later became publisher of the newspaper and served in that capacity for 30 years.

Bill Brown was born in Oakland in 1946 and was graduated from El Cerrito High School in 1963.

After attending the University of Pacific at Stockton for two years, he transferred to the University of Southern California (USC). He received a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from USC in 1967.

After graduation, he worked in other family businesses until his father purchased the Richmond Independent and Berkeley Gazette in 1972. He worked in various administrative capacities for those two papers until the publications were sold in 1981.

His hobbies include golfing — where he has a four handicap — and all other sports.

FORMER PUBLISHER Al Eisner (right) and new owner Bill Brown reviewed the Sept. 30 issue of the Carmel Pine Cone/Outlook. Sale of the paper and its sister publication, The Monterey Peninsula Review, was effective Sept. 30.

Panel to discuss Ocean Ave. zoning

Future zoning for Ocean Avenue will be discussed again when the Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee meets at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 7, at city hall.

The committee has already discussed limits on certain kinds of businesses on Ocean Avenue, but will re-evaluate all of the different proposals, according to the agenda.

In past meetings the committee has voiced concern over the proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses in the commercial zone in general, and on Ocean Avenue in particular.

The committee has already stated its belief that a new zone should be created specifically for Ocean Avenue. There is some question whether the zone should include the Carmel Plaza shopping complex, which is on the south side of Ocean Avenue between Mission Street and Junipero Avenue.

Members have agreed that the zone should extend from Monte Verde Street east to Mission Street.

The panel has agreed that the new zone should limit the number of tourist-oriented shops such as art galleries, restaurants and gift shops.

The citizen's committee was appointed by the council to review the 1973 Carmel General Plan and develop recommendations for possible revision. A final revised general plan is expected to be approved by the council in 1983.

New life will inhabit Carmel School campus

By MICHAEL GARDNER

LAWRENCE SPECTOR believes life begins at 65 and he plans to instill that philosophy in his new residential retirement complex in Carmel Valley.

Spector has leased the closed Carmelo School for $105,000 annually from the Carmel Unified School District. The board of education approved the lease Sept. 26.

Trustees closed Carmelo School and Woods School last spring because of declining enrollments and financial problems.

"The problem has always been that we have provided bigger and better accommodations for the elderly, but very little thought is given to their frame of mind," Spector told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

"It's still warehousing the elderly. It's a luxurious warehouse, but it's so big and so isolated because of the largeness that they feel useless. It's a tragedy."

Spector plans to renovate the school site about six miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road to accommodate 21 one-bedroom units. He also hopes to add a second phase of 21 additional units.

A use permit to open "Carmelo House" is to be considered Oct. 27 by the Monterey County Planning Commission. Renovation work is scheduled to begin in early January with a May opening date in mind, Spector said.

'The purpose of this is not that the guests will need the $10. It is the feeling they will get that they are still useful and can earn the $10.'

Renovation work on the first phase will cost an estimated $500,000. The second phase, which is all new construction, will cost approximately $1 million for the additional 21 units, Spector said.

Designer of the project is Kipp Stewart of Carmel.

Spector, who lives in Carmel Woods, was the founder of Ventana Inn in Big Sur. He still owns a minority interest in the restaurant-hotel complex. He is president of Graymore Investment Corp. of Carmel.

Spector began thinking about building a small activity-oriented retirement complex two decades ago when his grandmother needed a place. He could not find a suitable residential complex for the elderly.

"The shock was a sustaining one for me. I came home and said even if we have to work two jobs, she was going to stay at our house," Spector told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "I became very interested in the way the Asians treated their elderly with great dignity and respect.

"We warehouse our elderly almost in embarrassment. We put them out of sight, out of mind in facilities devoid of care in the human sense," he continued.

Spector's philosophy is that the elderly don't have to stop being active just because they are in a retirement home.

"It isn't going to be a place for a lot of wheelchairs to sit around in a circle and talk about the past," he said.

EACH one-bedroom suite will include a living room, restroom, dressing closet, storage area and kitchenette. The kitchenette will have a small refrigerator, sink and hot plate.

Most of the 21 rooms will have an area of about 500 sq. ft. with a few larger units of 650 sq. ft., Spector said.

The former library will be renovated into an activity room-dining hall complex. Residents will be served three meals daily with choice of entrees. There will also be light buffets in the morning and afternoon tea, Spector said.

The activity room will include an area with a fireplace where residents can entertain guests. The room will include tables for card games and puzzles. There will also be a small library available for residents.

The emphasis at Carmelo House will be upon activity, Spector said.

A new addition to the library will house an arts and crafts room. Outside the residents can have their own vegetable and flower gardens, and there will also be a miniature barnyard with a cow and chickens.

Spector already has begun talks with several local merchants so that residents can sell their arts and crafts in Carmel stores.

"The purpose of this is not that the guests will need the $10. It is the feeling they will get that they are still useful and can earn the $10," he explained.

Spector also believes that the residents could operate a day care center for area residents.

"Children add life wherever they are. Sometimes parents don't understand children, but almost always children and grandparents have so much to share and offer each other," Spector said. "Young people bring with them a sense of life and vitality," Spector explained.

Carmelo House will also have a van, which will transport residents three or four times weekly to town and on field trips.

Spector hopes to make Carmelo House "a home" in the eyes of the residents with everyone as "members of a family."

"The battle you fight when you're old is against loneliness and alienation," he said.

Carmelo House will also be fully staffed with a nurse on duty 24 hours a day.

Other staff members will include a couple to manage the facility, activities director, a full-time gardener, maintenance man, security police, receptionist, chef-dietician, maids, waitresses, buspersons and kitchen help.

•

CARMELO HOUSE will be open to anyone 65 and older as long as they are able to care for themselves. "I guess you could say we'll take anyone up to 120, that's our limit," Spector laughed.

Carmel House will not accept patients who are not well enough to take care of themselves.

"That's another world. We can't take care of the non-ambulatory. If you put the well and the sick together in one building, the well will only look at the sick and become discouraged and become sick," he said.

Arrangements will be made prior to admission that will determine what will happen to a resident if he becomes too ill to take care of himself, Spector said.

Residents will pay about $2,000 a month to stay at Carmelo House, which includes all meals and activities. There will also be a "small entry fee," which has not yet been determined, Spector said.

"You can get a terribly nice place for half this price, but there won't be any care in the human sense. Not because they will not, but because they can't because they're too big and there's too many people."

Spector added that he is concerned that the small activity-oriented facilities such as Carmelo House are so expensive.

"My ultimate build-out plan is to someday have a home for people of low and modest income means," he said. "Carmelo House profits will go toward eventually having a home for the people of less income."

Spector said there it is difficult to find a location for a house for low-income elderly.

"They (people) all say we have to have it and what a nice thing it would be to do," he said. "But of course no nice neighborhood wants them next door."

But Spector pointed out that such a home could not be constructed until well into the future after Carmelo House is fully operational and making a profit.

Area residents who would like more information about Carmelo House can contact director of admissions Michael Lorence at 624—7272 or 624-4020.

The Mayor's Report

Let's cooperate in pilot program to recycle glass, aluminum, paper

By CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND

WE HAVE covered a variety of topics in this column, from politics to sunsets.

Today I'd like to talk about refuse and how important it can be. You have — or soon will have — a green sheet of paper attached to your garbage can by the Roscelli Corp., on your regular pickup day.

Save it, please. It is a letter from the company which explains a recycling program for glass, aluminum and newspapers which is to start Oct. 11. This is a pilot program which, if successful in the Carmel area, may be expanded to other parts of the peninsula.

The letter explains that this is an opportunity for each of us to "help conserve energy and natural resources, reduce pollution and prolong the life of the landfill." It adds that if you have any questions, or if you did not receive or mislaid your letter, call 624-4303.

As a people, we produce an incredible amount of trash and there is less and less place to put it. The Marina landfill site operated by the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Refuse Disposal District was expected to last 100 years but now has a "life expectancy" of 40 years.

The people who operate the site are innovative, as evidenced by this program, and another project now under study — a real "trash-to-treasure" concept. The district plans to collect the methane gas produced by the decomposing garbage and use it to power generators, which will produce electricity to be sold to PG&E.

And, speaking of treasures, haven't the warm fall days been wonderful? The Monarch butterflies — those airborne jewels — are out in great profusion. Along with the bees, they seem to be attracted to the ivy "blooms" which otherwise seem to have little to recommend them as flowers.

Just another example of beauty or utility being where you find it, or what you can make of it.

Planners will consider revisions in Holt Ranch

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Planning Commission will consider a revised preliminary subdivision map for the proposed 473-acre Holt Ranch development in Carmel Valley when it meets Wednesday, Oct. 13.

The commission is scheduled to conduct environmental review for the revised preliminary map at 9:20 a.m. in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The site of the proposed development is located about one-third mile south of Carmel Valley Road on the west side of Robinson Canyon Road. The original subdivision map filed in 1979 envisioned 182 lots, but that was revised in 1980 to include 176 lots, said planner Wes Arvig.

The latest proposal by developer Richard Pryor of Carmel Valley is for 122 lots, with some changes in street patterns and lot layouts to produce cluster development, Arvig said.

Average lot size in the proposed subdivision map is 1.37 acres, with a one-acre minimum lot size in a cluster development which would designate some 276 acres as open space, Arvig added.

An environmental impact report prepared for the proposed development indicates that the lots are expected to sell for $100,000 to $150,000 each. Current market value of the property is estimated at $1.7 million, according to the EIR. The county has issued no approvals for the project, Arvig noted.

At 11:05 a.m., the planning commission is to consider a proposed amendment to the Carmel River floodplain ordinance which would allow the issuance of permits for recreational facilities within the 200-foot river floodplain.

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said the amendment was proposed because a permit to allow John Gardiner's Tennis Ranch in Carmel Valley to construct three tennis courts within the flood zone was approved before enactment of the ordinance, but then appealed to the board of supervisors.

"It would allow people to apply for the development of recreational facilities and low intensity, open space uses within the floodplain," Slimmon said. The amendment would prohibit any uses that would "increase flood-related hazards or impede flood flows."

The planning commission will conduct a public hearing at 11:25 a.m. on an application by Robert Broyles of upper Carmel Valley to construct a residence within area of prohibition of the river floodplain.

The property is located on the north side of the Carmel River, almost directly across from the Carmel Valley Inn, near Laureles Grade Road, Slimmon said. A previous owner of the property obtained a building permit to construct a house near the river, before the floodplain ordinance was passed to restrict construction within flood-prone areas of the river.

Broyles — the current owner of the property — wants permission to replace the already-approved house with one to be constructed some 200 feet from the river bank, Slimmon indicated.

And at 11:45 a.m., the commission is to reopen a public hearing on the proposed exclusion of certain areas from the Carmel Valley Master Plan. These include the Odello property, portions of the Fish, San Carlos and Point Lobos ranches, as well as the High Meadows/Marmonte area to the north of Carmel.

Those areas are proposed for exclusion since they are either within the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program or within the Monterey Peninsula Area Plan. The hearing was continued from the Sept. 29 planning commission meeting because of a lack of a commission quorum.

All meetings of the planning commission are open to the public.

Kay Goines nominated for teacher of the year

KAY GOINES, who is described by Carmel Unified School District Supt. William Rand as the "Picasso of education," has been nominated as California Teacher of the Year.

Mrs. Goines, a kindergarten teacher at Carmel River School, was honored by the Monterey County Board of Education last night, Oct. 6, as the county Teacher of the Year.

Mrs. Goines is now a candidate for the California Teacher of the Year award, which is sponsored by the state Department of Education. The recipient of that honor will be named later this year.

"I would just like to say I'm honored that the parents of the children I teach, my colleagues, the administration and the Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District and the Monterey County Office of Education feel that I am worthy of this honor," Mrs. Goines told the Pine Cone/ Outlook.

Excerpts from letters of nomination reflect how administrators, teachers and parents feel about Kay Goines.

"I feel like a novice painter describing a master. Kay Goines' influence on education is somewhat like Picasso's impact on art," Supt. William Rand wrote.

"I have watched her gentle, knowing touch, her loving and caring influence, and competent teaching of children on many occasions. Her classroom conveys a warmth and direction. The children are challenged and they learn to love learning," he added.

River School Principal Vance Frasier praised Mrs. Goines for her ability to not only teach children, but to also teach fellow teachers and the parents.

"Mrs. Goines is truly a teacher for all seasons. Over these many years, parents of children have looked to Kay Goines as a teacher of young children and a teacher of adults," Frasier wrote.

"No parent education or child study program would be considered complete without the participation of Kay Goines," he continued. "Knowing many wonderful techniques for handling specific problems is not the total significance of her contribution nor is it the true spirit of her genius.

"It lies in her ability to discover and illuminate the underlying conditions, the abiding human abilities that go beyond a specific situation. Here is the gift of power that becomes understanding," Frasier added.

•

PARENTS BOB and Norma Walch praised Mrs. Goines' instruction. One of their two children is in her class.

"Kay, you're magic. From the time we hand our daughter over to you until she returns home, she (and the rest of the class) enters the magic environment of your kindergarten class," they wrote.

"From the personal morning greeting at the door to the personal hand-holding goodbye at school's end, she and her classmates feel unique and loved.

"In addition to starting off the process of education on a positive basis, you also find time to send home parental notes keeping us abreast of the daily happenings and sharing special thoughts and insights. You are not only teaching the children, you are also educating the parents."

Fellow teacher Kathy Bauer, now living in Saratoga, wrote: "Perhaps most important to me is that you have helped me to articulate feelings and intuitions that previously were without form.

"Nowhere in the educational system have I found this intense marriage of moral purpose and emotional fulfillment with the courage and knowledge that is you.

"Thank you for persevering in your beliefs. Thank you for being the most needed teacher — for being the facilitator that allows me to believe I did it all myself," she continued.

And River School teacher Lisa Meckel added: "Now is a hard time in education; disillusionment runs wild and yet there are the children who need and the teachers who care.

"You are one of those caring teachers. I know the hours and the effort you invest in your teaching. You have taken your talents and increased them 100 times over to the great benefit of all who are touched by your life.

'The worst thing that can happen to us in teaching is the loss of sensitivity. We have to allow ourselves to express, to feel, to think.'

"You make me deeply proud to profess the name of teacher. Thank you Kay Goines," Ms. Meckel concluded.

Mrs. Goines, who is in her 28th year of teaching, described her feelings about teaching during an interview with the Pine Cone/Outlook.

"When you are in the classroom, you must be caring and curious. You must be curious enough to ask and you must be caring in your heart and in your mind. You have to care and be curious about how children feel and think," she said.

"The worst thing that can happen to us in teaching is the loss of sensitivity. We have to be sensitive to them. We have to allow themselves to express, to feel, to think.

"To me the miracle is not that they have learned to read, but the miracle is that they want to continue to read. That is the artistry of teaching," she concluded.

Mrs. Goines' work has also garnered her several awards and she has been the subject of articles in national education magazines such as Learning.

She was nominated for the Marcus Foster Memorial Reading Award and she co-authored the first Ginn book on English as a Second Language (ESL). Mrs. Goines is also featured in the California State Department of Education documentary Oral Language, which won the Grand Award at the National Film Festival in 1976.

Mrs. Goines is also a frequent guest lecturer not only in the United States, but also in other parts of the world.

The Conscience of Carmel

Measure A promises local control over county land use decisions

By GUNNAR NORBERG

DURING THE PAST 40 years I have spent many hundreds of hours — perhaps thousands — at meetings in the courthouse in Salinas where county officials have acted on disputed land use matters which pitted some yearning developer against the expressed will of a public to be affected by the developer's demand.

Often the developer had little care or concern about the effect his proposed development would have on the public which would have to live with the project's impact.

Too many times an undeserving developer would win official county approval even though the burden of the public's testimony would have supported an opposite conclusion. Many times the victory of the developer over an aroused public's seemingly flawless arguments, was due to behind-the-scenes pressures. But the publicly-stated justifications were found in the vague or ambiguous language of an over-all, county-wide planning document.

Measure A on the Nov. 2 ballet is intended to make possible meaningful citizen participation in the approval of each of the nine separate area plans which would have to come before voters in the nine county areas before they could take effect.

To win the approval of voters in each area for their plan, it is likely the planning requirements would have to be much more precise and exact than they have been. This would tend to make it more difficult for a county official or county governing body to tailor a decision to the taste of a yearning but undeserving or unwanted developer. This would make it more likely that the public could triumph in a contest with a developer, instead of finding itself the victim.

The voters in the Carmel area, both inside and outside the city limits, would have an interest in two of the proposed nine planning areas but they would have a specific vote in only one. The two areas are the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area and the Carmel Valley Area.

Voters inside the city of Carmel would vote on the plan for the Greater Monterey Peninsula, and so would voters outside of the city of Carmel who happen to live west of Highway 1, and those who live west of Hatton Canyon (where Hatton Canyon runs east of Highway 1). The rest of the people who reside in unincorporated Carmel would vote on the Carmel Valley area plan.

The county planning commission and the county planning staff would hold hearings and prepare the plans which would be submitted to voters in each of the nine proposed county areas. The planning commission and its staff would have to submit a plan in each of the nine areas which could win the approval of each area's voters.

The vote yes on measure A committee says this in answer to a question as to the necessity of the initiative:

"Land use in Monterey County over the next 20 years will follow comprehensive master plans now being drafted by the county board of supervisors and planning department. Lands for housing, business, agriculture, recreation and other uses are being designated. Responsible elected officials and effective government are critical in this planning process. But committees of politicians and bureaucrats are small groups often swayed by special interests. Measure A returns to voters the opportunity to establish the over-all direction for development, growth, and use of resources in their communities."

•

IN ITS BALLOT argument in favor of Measure A, the proponent committee denies a no-growth bias: "Measure A allows continued growth in the unincorporated areas. It will not restrict building on over 10,000 existing lots-of-record. Incorporated cities remain free to develop their own plans without any new restrictions. City voters gain the right to vote on the Master Plan for their own surrounding area. Measure A does not require an election for anything less than a comprehensive area master plan.

The opponent committee — which calls itself Citizens for the Future of Monterey County — says voters within any one of the nine separate plan areas cannot also vote on the specific plans for the eight other separate areas.

Voters would be specifically most concerned with land use in the areas where their homes are. At the same time there would be no restriction with regard to citizen appearances on any public matter under consideration in the county courthouse in Salinas, and which would relate to any part, or all, of Monterey County.

I would have preferred to have Carmel voters — both inside and outside of city limits — vote in the approval process on a proposed Carmel Valley plan rather than on the one which is called the Greater Monterey Peninsula plan. The Carmel area is, in fact, located on Carmel Bay, and not on the Monterey Peninsula, and the Carmel Valley is, of course, just inland.

Perhaps boundary changes could be arranged so that the Carmel area and the Carmel Valley could become parts of a single planning area. Since the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) would presumably continue to function regardless of the vote on Measure A, LAFCO in its zone-of-influence studies might have an effect on possible boundary adjustments between adjacent county planning areas. Annexations to adjoining cities will, of course, also continue to take place as they have in the past.

When you get your sample ballots, you will see the various detailed arguments which both proponents and opponents of Measure A have prepared, and also the impartial statement prepared by the Monterey County Counsel.

The committee opposing Measure A has collected and spent $44,254. According to the campaign finance statement filed with the Monterey County Elections Department, the separate contributions listed range from $5,000 downward. The large contributions have been made by land developers, real estate organizations, and building contractors.

The committee which initiated Measure A and collected 10,014 signatures for its placement on the Nov. 2 ballot has not managed to collect anything like the amount of money which the opponents have. But its effort in placing an important issue before Monterey County voters is one for which future generations could well be thankful if Measure A wins at the ballot box.

CLASS from the Tularcitos Parent Cooperative Nursery School visited the new playground area behind the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center last week, and Peg Henson (right) helped the tykes as they planted bulbs along a chain-link fence.

PEG HENSON, a director of the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center, swings her four-year-old daughter, Kate, in the park area which has been upgraded through her efforts and those of the center board of directors, the regional parks district, and local volunteers. (R.M. photos).

Carmel Valley Community Center gets public playground and park

CARMEL VALLEY now has its only public playground not connected with a school, thanks to the efforts of many volunteers and one dedicated director of the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

Peg Henson of Carmel Valley took a personal interest in creation of the playground about two years ago and has spearheaded it to completion, with the support of the youth center board of directors.

It's a portion of the property located behind the community center on Ford Road just off Carmel Valley Road, where a play area with sandbox, swings, a jungle gym and picnic tables soon will be complete.

"It was just grass and weeds before we started," Mrs. Henson told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "We actually started the improvement last spring; I thought of the idea for a playground two years ago, when I realized there were no playgrounds in the Valley except at the schools.

"I've never been in a community where there wasn't a playground/park," Mrs. Henson said. "I felt it was necessary to have a place where moms and dads could come when their kids are in schools. The moms can sit and visit while the kids play."

In conjunction with the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, the community center has spent some $32,000 to create the tot playground and an adjacent park area which will include barbecue pits and a volleyball court, Mrs. Henson said. Her project — the tot playground — has been budgeted $8,000.

The regional parks district owns the property on which the park and playground are located, but leases the land to the community center, Mrs. Henson explained.

The tot playground "is specifically for preschoolers from one to six years of age," she said. "It's the only playground not affiliated with a school in the Valley. The work has been done mostly with volunteer labor, and we've been assisted by service organizations such as the Rotary Club."

Businesses which have assisted include Murphy Lumber Co., Monterey Sand Co., MPW Enterprises, Phil's Septic, and John Simpson, who did the grading work at nominal cost, Mrs. Henson said.

"Service organizations have showed up for work days," she added. "The place was all overgrown when we started; it was a jungle."

The community center plans to have a grand opening for the park and playground in about two months, Mrs. Henson said.

Workshop Oct. 10 on Big Sur LCP viewshed

The Big Sur Citizens Advisory Committee to the Local Coastal Program will sponsor a workshop on the Big Sur "viewshed" at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 10 at the Big Sur Grange Hall.

All public and private interests are invited to participate and discuss the viewshed policy of the Big Sur LCP, how it works, and how it affects residents.

The purpose of the workshop is to provide an update on the status of the Big Sur LCP documents of record and to offer a forum for the constructive exchange and development of information between public and private interests, said organizer Roger Newell, chairman of the committee.

Council takes first step toward senior housing

"This location seems to be out best bet at this time," Mayor Townsend said.

The council reacted to a letter from special counsel Sidney Morris, who asked for some direction from the council on how to proceed with a senior housing project on the land parcels. Morris noted that Carmel voters approved an advisory ballot measure in 1980 which recommends that the city "in cooperation with a qualified private or public foundation or agency" construct, develop or acquire low-rent housing for senior citizens.

"Essentially, the question before the city council at this time is whether they would look favorably on an agreement which would grant the Carmel Foundation or some other non-profit corporation a long-term lease on this property on Dolores Street," City Administrator Peterson advised the council.

•

COUNCILWOMAN Helen Arnold said she is also concerned about zoning or land use conflicts which might arise from construction of senior housing units on the city lots, but said she felt confident that the Carmel Foundation could operate such a project in a compatible manner.

"I think the city should honestly be concerned about the zoning," Councilman Maradei said. "Do you know of any commercially-zoned land we could possibly trade our land for?" he asked Peterson.

The city administrator replied that a trade of residentially-zoned land for commercially-zoned land would probably have to entail additional cash on the part of the city. Planning Director Robert Griggs recommended that senior housing be located on the city lots.

"Housing for the elderly is better off in an area like that," Griggs said. "The city is exempt from its own zoning laws. Previous to Sunset Center being a public facility, it was zoned R-1."

"I'm for the concept," Councilman Maradei said. "If we have no other choices, we should do it. But if we have other possibilities we should explore them. I would be satisfied with a minimal search for other locations. If not, then I'd go with this property."

In other business, the council:

• Decided to postpone until consideration of a proposal to construct a public parking facility at Sunset Center until the revision of the 1973 Carmel General Plan is complete.

• Awarded $23,350 to various social service agencies, but discontinued funding to the Carmel Business Association for the first time in years. The CBA received $2,180 from the city last year.

• Directed the planning commission to begin pre-zoning of the 60-acre unincorporated Mission Ranch area

When I grow up I want to be a kid! Honest!

By AUDREY CURRAN

WHAT DO I want to be when I grow up? I want to be a kid!!

"I'm seventeen. How am I supposed to know what I want to be 20 years from now when I'm old and worn out!"

"What do I plan to be 20 years from now? Old . . . really old."

With the opening of school this fall, juniors and seniors in high school are being asked to give serious thought to their futures. In turn, they are asking some serious questions:

"Do I really want to go to college?"

"How can I go to college when I don't know what I want to study?"

"What good will college do me anyway?"

As an impressionable youngster I was taught that "Learning is its own reward," and "Education is an end in itself." As a young, inexperienced high school counselor, I learned that this approach with high school seniors earned me a queer look.

As the perpetually impoverished mother of four, I have engaged in a lifelong search for techniques to ensure my youngsters would all finish college. Presently, like Cinderella's glamorous trappings, my money market funds, gold futures and blue chip stocks are quickly changed into pumpkins, apples, steaks, bikes, books and dentist payments every time the first of the month rolls around.

I found it thrilling the day my first born got his driver's license and said: "Hey, Mom, can I borrow the car?" As selfish and unmaternal as it may seem, I just don't get the same thrill if I picture this same son as a college dropout, balding and slightly paunchy some 20 or more years from now saying: "Hey, Mom, can I borrow a hundred to get me through the month?" I admit it. I'm selfish and materialistic.

The following material released by the Census Bureau indicates the ability of today's high school graduate to become economically independent.

Heads of Households 25 and older	Median Income
5 or more years of college	$38,785
Finished college	$32,720
1 to 3 years of college	$26,723
Finished high school	$23,002
1 to 3 years of high school	$15,810
Finished grade school	$14,158
Did not finish grade schooi	$11,958

After reading these statistics, if you have youngsters with the native ability to succeed in college, you might want to threaten severe bodily harm if they are kicking, screaming and dragging their feet, not wanting to be drawn into adulthood and leave the questionable joys of adolescence behind them.

On the other hand, if you're scrupulous and object to brute force on principle, you might try blackmail and abandonment. An acquaintance of mine was momentarily bewildered by his bright daughter who said she wanted to work at Jack-in-the-Box for a year and earn the price of a car instead of entering college.

"That sounds like a good idea," he said calmly. Before his daughter could breathe a sigh of relief, he went on. "Saturday's the first of the month. If you can pack and move out by then, we can rent out your room. With that income and the money we save by your not going to college, your mom and I can take a cruise next summer. Shall I help you pack?"

His daughter started college the next week.

Carmel Sand Castle Contest Oct. 10

The 21st annual Great Sand Castle Contest is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 10 at Carmel Beach. The theme for the 1982 contest is a Celebration of the 125th Anniversary of the American Institute of Architects.

Architecture from the past 125 years might be appropriate source material for the sand castles, but contestants may basically follow any theme.

Judging of all entries will be at 2 p.m. Awards will be given for the following categories: Novice sand pile, advanced sand box, theme and grand sand. In keeping with tradition, the worst loser will receive the sought after Sour Grapes Award.

Judges for the event are: Carmel Mayor Charlotte Townsend; City Clerk Jeanne Kettlekamp; Councilman Robert Stephenson; City Attorney, George Brehmer; Susan de Clerc, Sunset Center Cultural Commissioner and Jean Grace, Harrison Library Board Member.

Limited coordination of the event will be attempted by architect Richard Barrett, Grand Sand Marshall. Judges from the American Institute of Architects (AIA) are: Bryce Graybill, Bob Warren, Len Cardoni, Don Goodhue, Russ Haisley and Jim Hommes.

The AIA information table will be located at the base of Ninth Street, Carmel. Registration of all entries by the judges will occur at the location of all entries. There is no pre-registration or entry fee.

Contestants and observers should observe the following:

Obey the City's parking and traffic laws and respect private property near the beach.

Leave all dogs at home. They can destroy an afternoon's hard labor in a matter of seconds.

No paint of any kind may be used.

Any hint of commercial advertising will disqualify any entry.

Please remove all foreign material when you leave and help keep Carmel Beach beautiful.

Excavation of excessively deep holes should be avoided due to possible cave in.

Holmgren to visit China as journalism teacher and free press exponent

By MICHAEL GARDNER

FOR TWO decades, Rod Holmgren of Carmel taught many aspiring journalists on the campus of Monterey Peninsula College before he retired in 1979.

Today Holmgren will once again teach the elements of the Fourth Estate. But this time it will be on a campus in the middle of Beijing (Peking), the capital of the People's Republic of China.

The Chinese central government has been intensely interested in adapting to western technology ever since former President Richard Nixon established diplomatic ties.

To help its people out of the remnants of Mao Tse-Tung's Cultural Revolution of the mid-1960s, the communist government has hired American industrialists and teachers to live on the mainland and to instruct the Chinese in various technological fields.

But the instruction is not limited solely to technical industries. The Chinese are eager to learn about all aspects of the American way of life, including its journalism.

'The understanding I have is they want me to teach journalism the way I would teach it here. The very premise of that is freedom of the press.'

That is why conservationist Holmgren has a round-trip ticket between San Francisco and Beijing. He leaves Oct. 21.

"It will be an exciting challenge. I've never been to China," Holmgren told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "China is a most interesting country in a period of great transition.

"They're shedding the remnants of the cultural revolution. I just think I'm going to have a great time. I hope I will be able to do a service to the students at the institute."

Holmgren has stacks of correspondence between himself and Chinese officials in San Francisco, Washington, D.C. and Beijing.

Holmgren applied for the position several months ago at the urging of a long-time friend Jerry Werthimer, who helped establish the journalism program at San Francisco State University 23 years ago and has been there since. He recently returned from a one-year teaching assignment in Beijing.

Holmgren, a 68-year-old Sierra Club member, was on a day-long hiking excursion in the Los Padres National Forest when his acceptance letter came in the mail Sept. 21.

•

SINCE THE arrival of the letter, the Holmgren household has been a whirlwind of activity. Holmgren and his wife, Katherine, have made plans to be away for a year. Son Jack has arranged to live in the house while his parents are in China.

"We have to arrange our lives for one year. We'll be gone that long. It's a lot of work," Holmgren said.

Mrs. Holmgren will not leave until next month. She will probably teach English as a second language at one of the universities in Beijing.

Meanwhile, Holmgren has hired two tutors to give him — within a month — a fundamental grasp of the Chinese language, which is considered one of the most difficult languages in the world to learn. His tutors spend two hours a day, five days a week with him.

Holmgren believes the work will pay off. When he faces the first morning class, he will be able to say more than just "Zao an, ne hao ma?" ("Good morning, how are you?"). Members of the class will be able to speak English, however, Holmgren pointed out.

Teaching a communist class the ways of the independent American press will not pose a conflict with his Chinese hosts, Holmgren believes.

"They want me to teach them American-style journalism. I think that's absolutely marvelous," he said. "The understanding I have is they want me to teach journalism the way I would teach it here. The very premise of that is freedom of the press.

"I think they will want to understand how we do it. They want to know everything. There is no limit to the kind of knowledge they want to cover."

Holmgren said the complete course curriculum will be discussed with the director of the school before classes begin.

Holmgren will teach what he calls "advanced nuts and bolts," which will encompass in-depth stories, copy reading and editing.

In the spring, he wants to introduce the students to feature writing, commentaries and reviews of local cultural events.

Holmgren also wants to advise the class on the elements of magazine writing, which will help the students get published in several of the English language magazines published by China for distribution to the western world.

ROD HOLMGREN of Carmel will leave for the People's Republic of China Oct. 21 to teach journalism at a Beijing (Peking) school. (Michael R. Gardner photo.)

•

HOLMGREN WOULD also like to discuss the American way of life with his Chinese students.

"There is no question that the Chinese have an enormous curiosity about American culture and our way of doing things," he said.

The school is operated by the news agency Xinhua, which is the Chinese counterpart of the American United Press International (UPI) and Associated Press (AP). The director of the school is a man named Xu Chengshi.

Xu Chengshi is an admirer of the book Interpretive Reporting written half a century ago by Curtis MacDougall, former editor of the Evanston News-Index in Illinois.

Holmgren and McDougall were arrested during a street demonstration when McDougall was running as a Progressive Party candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1948. The case was dismissed the following morning.

"The man in charge of the program is a great admirer of MacDougall's book," Holmgren said. "They asked me to bring any materials I can related to the book."

The China assignment is not Holmgren's first overseas teaching job. During a sabbatical leave from MPC in 1966-67, Holmgren received a Fulbright award to lecture in Kabul, Afghanistan.

Holmgren, who received his degree from Northwestern University in Illinois, has also taught at Northwestern, the University of Chicago, UC Berkeley and Iowa State University.

Holmgren began teaching at MPC in 1959 and retired in 1979. He is active in many area conservation groups, including the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club.

Sierra Club vows to work against Arroyo Seco dam

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE SIERRA CLUB will work aggressively to defeat plans for a $150 million dam on the Arroyo Seco River.

Roy Anderson, chairman of the 3,500-member Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club, said his organization "will mobilize our members and as many sympathetic members of the public as we can to stop this."

Anderson made his comments to the Pine Cone/Outlook this week in the wake of the unanimous endorsement of the project Sept. 28 by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors accepted a recommendation of the Salinas Valley Water Advisory Committee to support construction of a large dam with 100,000 ac. ft. storage capacity on the Arroyo Seco River. The board supported the Pools site but also left open the possibility of construction at the Greenfield site.

The board of supervisors loaned $200,000 to the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District for initial planning to determine which areas of the county would receive water from the dam.

One possibility is that the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District could receive water from the Arroyo Seco reservoir, instead of constructing a 27,000 ac. ft. reservoir on the upper Carmel River.

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club is the only organization which has publicly stated its opposition to the dam project. (See related article in this issue.) The chapter is opposed to construction of the dam anywhere on the Arroyo Seco River, but considers the Pools site — favored by the board of supervisors — more environmentally damaging than the Greenfield site.

"We're not going to drop this," Anderson told this newspaper. "We will work on this very intensively. The Pools site is on national lands and would require approval by the president for it to be inundated. The Forest Service is under the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture — not the Secretary of Interior. I assume the president would look for a recommendation from the Secretary of Agriculture before he acted on it."

Anderson said he is encouraged by the fact that — if the dam project gets to the point where federal authorization to flood the Ventana Wilderness is required — Interior Secretary James Watt would not be consulted.

"If there has to be a choice, we'd prefer the Greenfield site," Anderson said. "We are definitely opposed to a dam at the Pools site. The board of supervisors picked the worst of two evils."

Supervisors have been advised by officials of the flood control district that construction of the dam could start as early as 1985, with the first delivery of water by 1987. There may be no requirement for a public vote on the financing mechanism for the project, according to Joseph Madruga, acting assistant district engineer for the flood control district.

•

MARY ANN MATTHEWS of Carmel Valley, a member of the Sierra Club, spoke in opposition to the dam project at the Sept. 28 supervisors' meeting.

"We feel the dam would violate the Wilderness Act," Mrs. Matthews told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "The cost would be so high that farmers in the Salinas Valley would be looking toward more efficient ways to use water.

"The cheapest source of water is a more efficient use of the water there already is," she said. "We don't feel that the alternatives to a dam have been adequately explored."

Mrs. Matthews noted that the CH2M Hill consulting firm which prepared the initial study of the Arroyo Seco dam project is the same firm which "studied the Carmel River and concluded that riparian vegetation was dying as a result of the drought — not as a result of pumping from the aquifer."

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club took the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on a hike through the Arroyo Seco River gorge in 1969, with the result that the supervisors took a position opposed to construction of a dam at any upstream site, Mrs. Matthews said. The most recent position of the board of supervisors appears to be a reversal of that 1969 position, she added.

"A whole lot of water could be saved through advances in irrigation techniques in the Salinas Valley," Mrs. Matthews said. "If farmers were more efficient in the Salinas Valley, then more water would get down to the Castroville area to help reverse the problem with salt water intrusion.

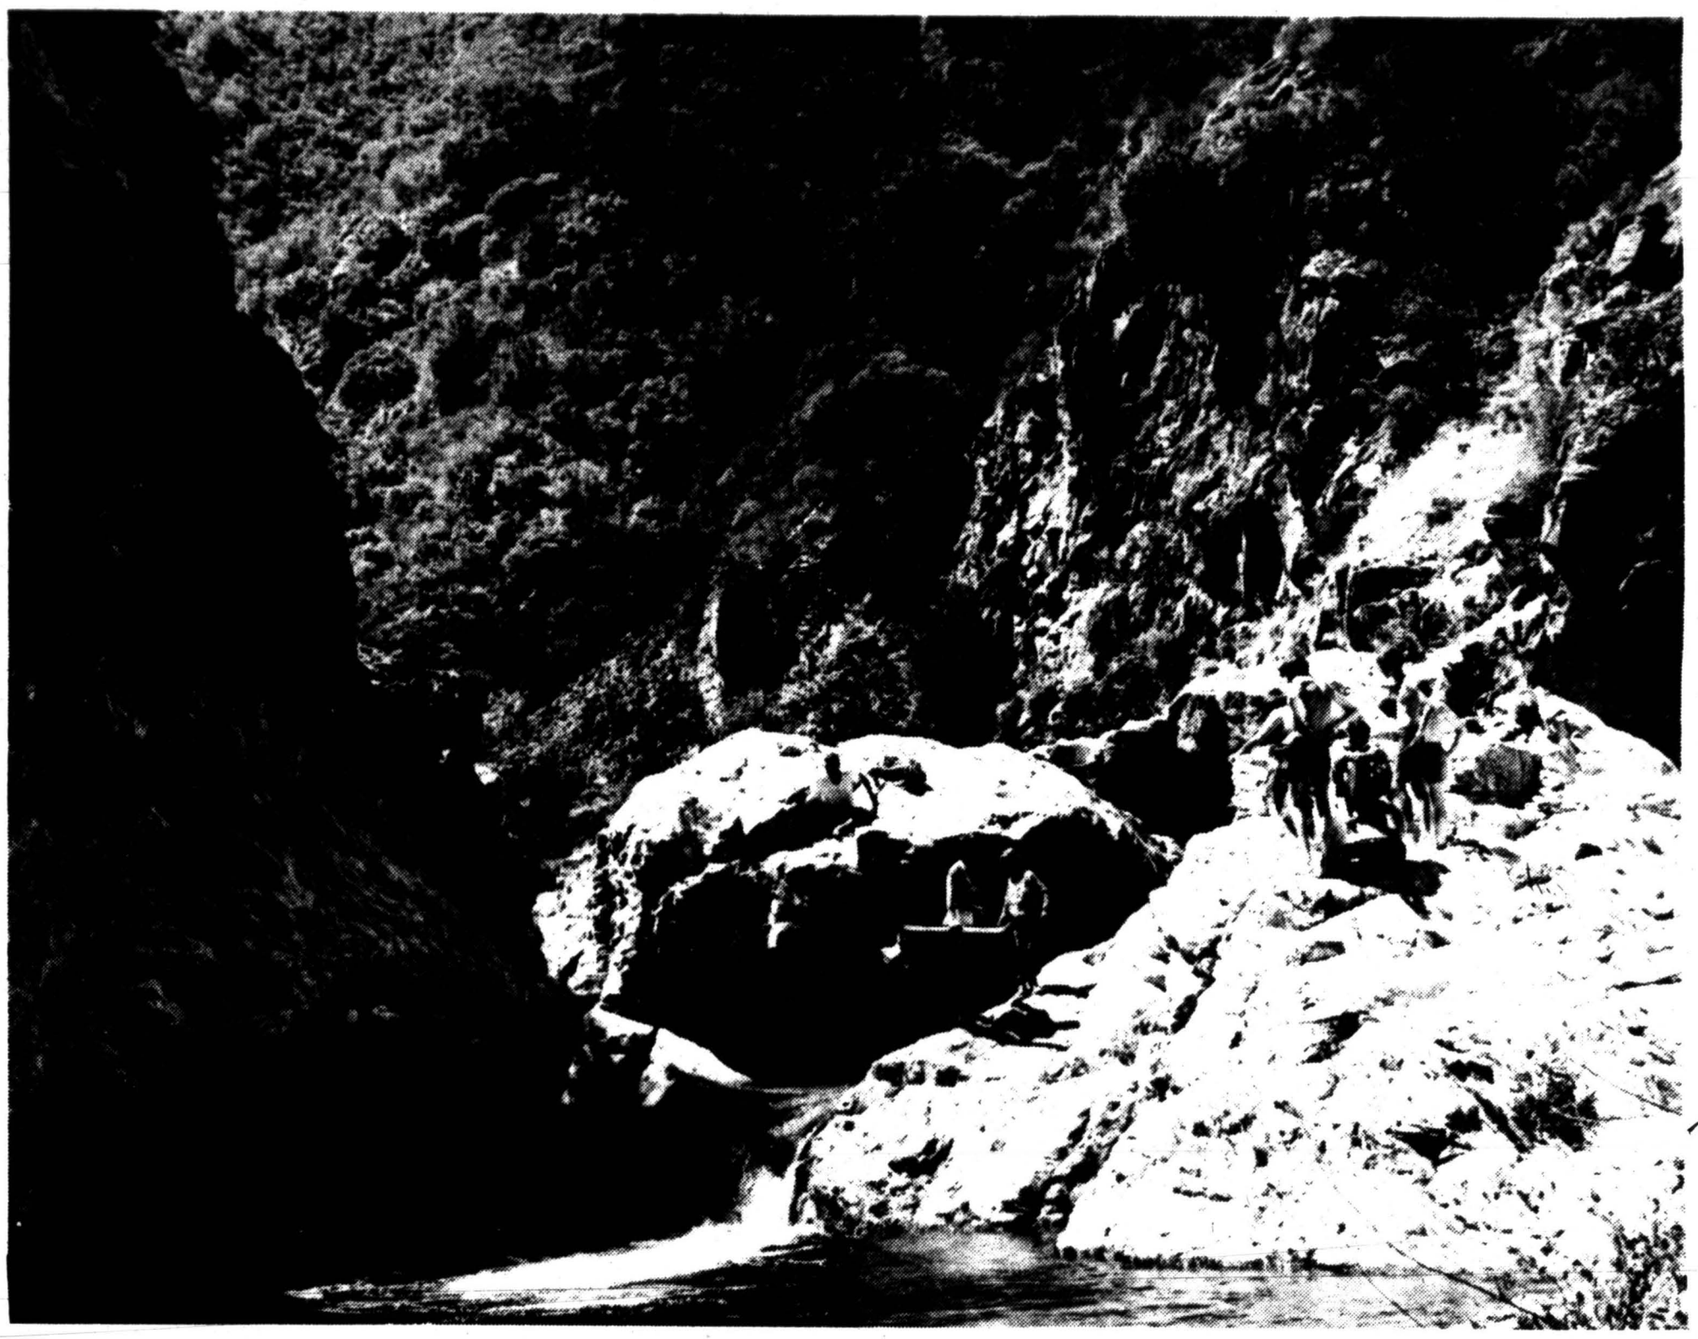
SIERRA CLUB GIVES POSITION ON DAM

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a position paper on the proposed $150 million dam on the Arroyo Seco River prepared by the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club and presented to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Sept. 28. The board of supervisors unanimously endorsed the concept of a large dam on the Arroyo Seco River and took steps to implement further study and planning for the facility.)



GORGE AREA of the Arroyo Seco River provides deep pools for swimming and waterfalls as the river winds downward into the Salinas Valley. The gorge area — described by many as of surpassing natural beauty — is within the portion of the Ventana Wilderness which would be inundated if a proposed major dam with 100,000 sq. ft. storage capacity is constructed at the Pools site. (Jim Ziegler photo.)

THE SIERRA CLUB opposes the location of a dam and reservoir on the Arroyo Seco River.

The recommendation under consideration at this time is for the location of a dam and reservoir at the Pools site, as stated in the Arroyo Seco Dam Feasibility Study Final Report, prepared by CH2M HILL. The final report also discusses an alternative location at the Greenfield site, and states that the latter should not be eliminated until approval to modify the Ventana Wilderness area boundaries is received (Final Report, Chapter VIII-10).

The Sierra Club takes the view that both locations will result in substantial environmental damage which will not be materially lessened by any possible mitigation measures.

The Pools site will require the flooding and destruction of wilderness areas, the precise amount of which is presently unknown. In discussing the use of the Pools site, a certain amount of attention has been given to the removal of 400 acres of the Ventana Wilderness. However, the actual amount of Forest and Wilderness space involved in the project is 900 acres.

All of this land is within the Los Padres National Forest, and, except for a narrow corridor for the Indians Road, is entirely within Wilderness, or areas scheduled for further study under the Rare II planning program (and it should be noted that no cost allocation is made for the acquisition of the right to use the 900 acres of U.S. Forest land).

The National Wilderness Preservation System has been established by act of the United States Congress. The system is composed of federally-owned areas designated by Congress as "wilderness areas" which are to be administered for the use and enjoyment of the American people in such manner as will leave them unimpared for future use and enjoyment as wilderness.

Implicit in this legislative scheme is the need to protect and preserve these lands for future generations. In the view of the Sierra Club, this express legislative purpose will be violated by the dam at the Pools site.

Use of the Pools site would involve extensive cutting, scarring and excavation in a heavily wooded area, together with the construction of access roads.

The project would result in the destruction of the Horsebridge Crossing, and the flooding of a large portion of the Arroyo Seco Gorge, as well as the depressions formed by tributary streams (Santa Lucia Creek, Willow Creek and Tasajara Creek), all of which would mean the loss of one of the most spectacularly beautiful, pristine areas in Monterey County. A similar undertaking flooded the Grand Canyon of the Tuolumne River in the formation of Hetch Hetchy in 1923, a happening over which controversy still rages.

One of the main reasons given for an Arroyo Seco Dam Project at either location is the need for additional water in the lower Salinas Valley (Castroville-East Side), North Monterey County (Prunedale), Seaside, Marina and the Monterey Peninsula.

The final report states that the overdraft of ground water in the Upper Valley and Forebay areas has been essentially stopped by the San Antonio-Nacimiento Dams. It is obvious from this that little, if any, benefit will accrue to any area in Monterey County from Gonzales south from the standpoint of present and future water needs. The areas which will receive benefit all appear to have alternatives which are less environmentally destructive, with costs per acre foot ranging from less than those of the present project to slightly more.

Neither the Pools site dam nor a dam at the Greenfield site would result in any significant flood control benefits. The reason for this is that peak flows from the Arroyo Seco and Salinas rivers do not coincide, and the time to peak for the smaller Arroyo Seco Basin is much shorter than that of the Salinas River. Therefore payment for any portion of the costs of any dam on the Arroyo Seco by the federal government for flood control benefits is unlikely.

General public support will be needed to effect construction of a project of the expense and magnitude involved in either the Pools or Greenfield locations. A dam and reservoir at the Pools site, because of its remoteness, access difficulty, limited recreation potential, and extensive environmental damage will not have the popular appeal and support that a dam and reservoir at the Greenfield site would have.

The final report recognizes that there is little, if any, potential for recreational facilities at the Pools site. We believe that the public has the right to be informed that considerations of recreational use by the general public have been given minimal importance in the selection of the Pools site, yet the flooded area would be removed from a wide variety of recreational uses for which it is available in its natural condition.

•

THERE ARE barriers to the use of the land at the Pools site, which are absent from the Greenfield site. The Pools site is entirely on National Forest land as noted above and that land is administered by the Department of Agriculture through the U.S. Forest Service. A permit or lease must be had from that agency, which would not be required for the Greenfield site (which could be acquired by direct negotiation or through the exercise of the power of eminent domain).

Most significant, however, is that the Pools site reservoir would inundate land designated by Congress as "wilderness." Only the president has authority to authorize water projects within wilderness areas, and it is possible that the necessary authority could not be obtained.

Of the four factors given at Chapter VIII-10 of the final report for selection of the Pools site over the Greenfield site, by far the most important is that the former will not require relocation of homes at Sycamore Flat. Yet the location of a dam at the Pools in order to save those homes might be a misleading gesture to residents of areas downstream from the Pools, and in the long run may prove to be a Pyrrhic victory.

The danger any earth-filled dam poses to the safety of downstream persons and property should be obvious to anyone who knows about the failure of the dam in Baldwin Hills in Los Angeles in 1963 (13 lives lost) and Idaho's Teton Dam in 1976. Probably the biggest dam disaster in the history of the west was the St. Francis Dam in Los Angeles County in 1928, in which 450 lives were lost.

The Pools' earth-filled dam would be holding back a 358-foot wall of water at maximum pool elevation just a few miles up canyon from Fred's Camp, Miller's Lodge and Sycamore Flat. The seismic safety of an earth-filled structure located within a relatively short radius of a major earthquake fault, such as the San Andreas Fault, and within a much closer distance of two other active faults, is questionable at best.

The liability exposure to Monterey County resulting from a calamity with this dam would be enormous. Any property owner at Sycamore Flat or elsewhere below the projected maximum pool for the Greenfield site might be better off to take the proceeds of the inevitable condemnation proceedings which would be required for acquisition of that site, and look elsewhere for the location of their permanent or recreational residences.

The Salinas Valley Water Advisory Commission's vote on the choice between the two locations was narrowly split (a motion to designate the Greenfield Bridge site lost 7-8). Although the Sierra Club does not endorse the downstream location, it would appear to be prudent that if this board were to favor embarking upon this hugely expensive project, the recommended preliminary steps as contained in the advisory commission's recommendations of Aug. 20, embrace the possible location of the dam at the Greenfield site.

Also of importance to many, with reference to a possible Pools dam, is a matter not specifically addressed in the Final Report. It is the loss of Camp Cawatre, the Girl Scout Camp located near the confluence of the Santa Lucia Creek and the Arroyo Seco River, which would be inundated at the maximum pool.

We understand that the Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council has expressed its concern about this loss by means of their letter dated Aug. 19 addressed to the chariman of the Salinas Valley Water Advisory Commission.

Whether the establishment of a reservoir at either of the locations does or does not serve permanently to alleviate or cure the overdraft of ground water, the salt water intrusion, or other problems addressed by the report, some of which conclusions have to be characterized as doubtful, the construction of a dam at the Pools site will permanently remove lands from use and enjoyment.

Construction at either location (but particularly at the Pools site) will remove the native habitat of a variety of forms of flora and fauna, whose protection is the responsibility of those of us who enjoy our great outdoors areas, as well as the persons who have the decision-making power in this matter.

The selection of either location obviously affects but only persons whose lives are in being at the present time, but it also impinges upon generations for all time to come. Such a decision should be carefully made, and at this point adequate thought has not been given, in the view of this organization, to environmental impact mitigation measures, including, but not by way of limitation, fish mitigation costs.

We believe that there is no adequate way in which these environmentally destructive projects can be successfully mitigated.

Business Beat

Imports are big business in Carmel

By FLORENCE MASON

IMPORTS — BIG BUSINESS?

In Carmel, there's no question about it. Thinking that I had typed that word "imports" quite often recently, I checked back to the first of this year. Eleven new import shops opened in Carmel already this year — four of them last month!

The owners of these new shops have something in common besides the fact that their merchandise is primarily of exclusively imported from other countries. They each have an intensity and excitement about their goods and a conviction that Carmelites and visitors will not only look at these items but buy them.

The new shops are: The Baobab Collection, first shop to open at The Crossroads (Africa); Conway of Asia, a second shop in the area (Orient); Scandinavian Imports; St. Moritz Sweaters (Argentina); The Elegant Set (China, France); Kiwi Krafts (New Zealand); Dance Centre (England); Viau Antiques (Europe, the Orient); The French Collection; Cuzco Imports (Peru); Caravan to Mazar (Afganistan). A twelfth — Zonation's Third World — received a business license in January, but never opened.

In addition to those shops, which primarily or exclusively show imported merchandise, several others that opened this year include imports among their offerings: Carmel Mercantile Co. at The Crossroads (English and Danish furniture); The Collection, with two stores at The Crossroads (England, Persia, Egypt); Golf Arts and Imports (from wherever there is a golf course or interest in the game). If I have left out other new shops that should have been included, I apologize.

It remains to be seen whether or not the owners' enthusiasm is contagious and the shops are successful. One has already closed: Scandinavian Imports decided to abandon its Dolores Street premises when plans to include a Danish bakery did not materialize.

THE LEMBOS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC TOO — AND OPTIMISTIC

"It is a good package to put together." Annis Lembo is referring to her husband's talent and long connection with computers and her own retail sales and real estate experience. The "package" is Hampton Court Properties, which plans a Nov. 1 opening of offices in the new building on the southwest corner of San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue.

Charles Lembo owns Cyberdata, a computer company with offices on Garden Road in Monterey. With many years in the field, he will develop the computer systems for the new real estate offices.

"It's already being done in some other areas but not here," Mrs. Lembo said. "To begin with, we'll have appraisal programs and marketing programs, with more to come. All our agents will have terminals in from six to eight months."

Annis Lembo has some special ideas about real estate offices, too. With designer Al Pauls, she will work out plans for a modular set-up that will "encourage a sense of realtor and client working together."

Instead of desks all in a row, the plans call for "a conversational scenario." The modules will be custom-built and there will be many plants, built-in files, comfortable chairs, coffee tables and other amenities.

Mrs. Lembo's business experience includes a number of years with I. Magnin's, most of it in San Francisco, and six years in real estate. Five people who worked with her in another local real estate office will be joining the firm: Mary Margaret Killien, Gloria and Carol Knickerbocker, Diane Ledford and Yvonne Nordhoff. Eventually, the Lembos expect to have 10 salespeople.

If you are wondering, as I did, about the Lembo's optimistic and ambitious plans at a time when the real estate market is admittedly slow, Annis Lembo had something to say about that:

"We're going on the theory that going in at a slow time in the right sort of way can be good. We have a different approach that may work."

ANNIS LEMBO sits in front of the still-uncompleted real estate office that she and her husband, Charles, will open as Hampton Court Properties Nov. 1. (M.G. photos.)

She acknowledged that it was a business gamble, but it was obvious that she was optimistic about the outcome.

The Lembos have three sons, the youngest of whom still lives at home, attends MPC, and works at a local golf course.

The Lembos were so impressed with Walter/White Fine Arts' sign, next door to their new offices, that they asked Walter/White to design a similar one for their real estate business. And the fine new building grows more and more attractive each day as a little of the novelty wears off and the well-planned greenery takes hold.

HOW TO GET RID OF A HEADACHE

Why did David Dilworth start a new business called "Everything's Negotiable"? He said: "The idea had been hitting me on the head for about 20 years; I guess I wanted the headache to stop!"

Dilworth negotiated successfully for family and friends while he grew up in Pacific Grove and embarked on several other interesting careers. Last spring he had three requests for his negotiation services and his "clients" insisted on paying him because he had saved them so much money. It finally occurred to Dilworth that there could be money in his "knack" as well as an oportunity to help people.

Now "Everything's Negotiable" is in business by phone or through a Monterey post office box, and Dilworth no longer has a headache. His team of four negotiators works on a commission basis. "It's generally 50 percent of whatever we save our clients, but we are still trying out different approaches. If the potential client is already getting a fair price, we won't take him on. If we don't save him anything, we don't get a commission!" Dilworth said.

The company handles all major purchases, including real estate, automobiles, appliances, electronics, aircraft, home furnishings and computers.

There's also an associate for sports — Dennis Zarrow of Carmel — who will negotiate the purchase of yachts, tennis equipment, hang gliders, scuba diving gear and even sailplanes. Zarrow, an astronomer, is a Carmel High School graduate. He is the West Coast representative for Space Art, a company which specializes in photographs of galaxies and other heavenly objects.

Another CHS graduate — Pat Bray — handles the automotive division of this intriguing new company. Bray is also a manufacturer's representative.

Dilworth, the company president and chief negotiator, lived in Europe for several years and at one time was involved in research and development for a manufacturer of racing automobiles. He has also taught hang-gliding, in such faraway places as Russia. Five years ago he began — and he'll continue to operate — the Wind Center, where he sells wind-surfing equipment.

NEW OWNERS of L'Animal in the Carmel Plaza are Ivan and Margot Coomer, formerly of Zimbabwe.

in Carmel, we might have mentioned shops that bring Carmelites special merchandise from other parts of our own country. Not a new shop, but one which offers a new line of furniture from the south, is Western Contract Furnishers in the Valley Hills Center off Carmel Valley Road.

The firm has been in that location four years, manager Linda Ambrosio said. Now it will become a gallery show room for Knob Creek, a line of furniture from North Carolina. It is mostly traditional, but includes some contemporary pieces and a wide selection of fabric samples. Ms. Ambrosio said it is in the "moderate" price range.

Western Contract Furnishers also has stores in Concord, San Francisco and San Jose which sell wall coverings, fabrics and carpeting. In this outlet, there is an emphasis on commercial furnishings, Linda Ambrosio said.

When I asked her how long she has been in this area, she laughed and said: "My family has been here since 1770!" Members of her family were bodyguards for Father Junipero Serra during his California journeys.

Ms. Ambrosio is single and lives in Carmel. She is a physical fitness buff.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

New owners of L'Animal, the animal-oriented gift shop in the Plaza, are a delightful English couple from Zimbabwe, even at 10 o'clock on a rainy night.

"We were in San Diego first, on a holiday, visiting friends," Margot Coomer said. "We loved California right away and other friends — in Bakersfield — sponsored our move. We tried San Diego first, but didn't want to stay there, so we started up the coast. We came to Dolores Street at 10 o'clock on a rainy night and said 'Wow!' This is for us!" The next day we bought this business."

The Coomers don't always act so precipitously. They have rented "a dear little cottage" on Forest Street and will take their time about finding a permanent home of their own.

The couple has 20 years' business experience in central and south Africa. They plan to continue L'Animal just as it has been. That means a French country theme and animals in one form or another, some of them displayed on bales of hay.

Margot and Ivan Coomer have two daughters happily settled into local schools. Kelly is going to MPC and is particularly interested in computers; Cindy is a student at Santa Catalina. Their interests are family-oriented, Mrs. Coomer said, including their children's school activities, church and sports. Ivan Coomer used to play rugby and cricket for his province.

"This is just the most beautiful part of the world!" Mrs. Coomer said.

SILK TABLECLOTHS?

Yes, according to Ken Derrick at The Elegant Set. Silk tablecloths attract the most attention in his new shop at San Carlos Street and Seventh Avenue, he said.

"People who come in are amazed at the amount of labor in these cloths, for the price," Derrick said. "Also, they find it hard to believe that they are so practical."

Derrick said the cloths, made of silk organza with silk embroidery, can be hand or machine washed. To test that for themselves, the owners of the store soaked one cloth in red wine for 24 hours, then got the stains out with club soda! The club soda treatment works just as well on small stains, Derrick said. If the cloth loses some body when it is washed, this can be restored with Magic Sizing, available in local stores.

"Silk tablecloths are the wave of the future," Derrick said. He added that this is the first time they have been available in this country. The lovely new shop also sells other table linens, crystal and silver. Co-owners with Ken Derrick are Betty Miller and Eileen Weems.

NOTED

There's a new shop in the Paradise mall and it has a very specific line: package dried fruit, nuts and candy. Robert H. Moore is the owner of California Dried Fruit and Nut Co., toward the back of the mall on the right side.

Moore, well-known as the proprietor of a fruit drying yard in Hollister, will continue selling the products of Moore Dry Yard to packers, and in turn, he'll by buying the fruit and other items he sells in Carmel from packers, rather than processing them himself. Just in time for Christmas!

Maria Alice Foster has a brand of new Carmel license too. It's for space rental at Dee Dee's beauty salon in Bell Tower Court on San Carlos Street.

Maria moved to the peninsula from San Jose to join her friend Delia Garcia, owner of the shop. She'll specialize in hair coloring and manicures.

She lives in Seaside, likes music, and is especially enchanted by her three-year-old son, Shawn Patrick Foster; being at the park of the beach with Shawn is her favorite pleasure-time activity.

The newspaper racks at The Tobacco Company in The Barnyard are now full. Available for purchase in Bill Watkins' shop, next to the Windmill, are Los Angeles Times, the San Francisco Chronicle, Wall Street Journal, New York Times, Washington Post, London Times; three times a week you can get the Daily Racing Form and once a week, the London Observer, Manchester Guardian and Chicago Tribune.

Another new item: cordless telephones. And you can buy tobacco as well as chess sets, sailboats and a fascinating variety of other items. While you're there, ask to see (and hear) the complete weather station — barometer, thermometer, humidity gauge and talking weather report!

When Watkins described his shop to a friend at a party, the friend replied: "Oh, a men's toy store!" Women are welcome, too. And there is a TV set that will be tuned to Forty-Niner games if . . . and when.

The Marshall Group, a Carmel-based service, has established three franchise operations. The first to open was in Sacramento (Aug. 30), then one in Colorado Springs (Sept. 13) and just this week, one in San Diego.

Local persons who might be interested in working in one of these areas can send applications through the Carmel headquarters on Lincoln Street or directly to the new offices.

Judy Jordan, director of operations for The Marshall Group, said franchisees all have been trained in sessions conducted here. She also goes out to the new locations for an additional week of training on the scene.

Now it's official! the acquisition of Monterey Savings and Loan by Coast Federal Savings and Loan of Los Angeles, has taken effect.

The peninsula institution, with branch offices in Carmel and Carmel Valley, will retain its name and officers, except that former president Webb Ball becomes senior vice president for Coast Federal.

He'll be based in San Mateo, becoming responsible for administration of more than 60 branches in 12 northern California counties, including all 19 Monterey Savings offices.

B-Sharp Follies coming to Sunset

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

HELLO DOLLY? Show Boat? Cabaret? Well, not exactly but it does promise excitement as well as delightful entertainment.

It's called the B-Sharp Follies — a sparkling musical variety revue sponsored by the Monterey County Symphony Guild. The fun affair will be professionally staged and costumed by New York director Howard Miller who was on hand for the auditions and casting party held at the Pebble Beach home of Lucille Huntington recently. Lucille, by the way, is the director's assistant.

Keep in mind that you don't have to be a professional to be a "star." Good sportsmanship and desire is all you need to participate in a skit, clown around or show your gams while high-kicking in the ladies' or gents' chorus line. It's all local talent so even if you don't participate you'll enjoy watching your friends or neighbors show off their many talents. The event will be held at Sunset Center Oct. 22, 23, and 24.

One gent who is all set to dance a jig (and also play his gutbucket) is former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo. Barney says rehearsals are stirring up muscles he never knew he had but that it's also keeping him in shape.

Another tidbit of news from Barney and his lovely Elinor is the 20-40 Club party they attended last Sunday evening. The group formed in 1945, shortly after the war, and according to Barney is was a way for local folks to get acquainted. With their quota set at 100 people, they first met in the basement of the Church of the Wayfarer. Most of the original group is still together and they plan some special activity each month.

Sunday's affair was an Oktober-Fest held at the Carmel home of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker. The gathering included German dress, music by the Mike Marotta Band and an array of German food including special German sausage made by Kurt Maron, who's the head sausage maker for the Saag Sausage Co. in Oakland.

As soon as I track down Lucille, I'll pass along further information about the Follies, so stay tuned!

VOLUNTEER SERVICES TEA OCT. 13

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services will gather for tea at the Carmel home of Mrs. Robert Surtees on Wednesday, Oct. 13. Guests will be board members of the Family Service Agency and the Visiting Nurse Association.

The annual tea precedes the large MPVS sale at the fairgrounds to be held Oct. 30, which will equally benefit these two organizations.

Those who attend the tea will bring gifts of potted plants destined to grace the plant booth at the sale.

Chairwoman for the tea and the plant booth is Mrs. Ross Wilson. Mrs. Herbert Taylor is chairwoman of the sale. Her co-chairwoman is Mrs. George Macy.

Anyone who wishes to donate items for the sale may take them to the MPVS Thrift Shop, 755 Broadway in Seaside, or call 394-5025 for a pick-up.

WILL GAHAGAN IS ELIMINATED

Will Gahagan of the Carmel Valley Racquet Club and his partner Col. Nick Powel of Washington, D.C., were eliminated in the semi-final round of the National Seniors 70's tennis championships held at Charlottesville, Va. recently by the team of Len Prosser of Kansas and Hank Crawford of Georgia by a score of 6-1 and 6-1.

Top seeded Prosser and Crawford lost 6-3 and 6-2 to Harry Hoffman and George Reynolds. Hoffman won the singles title from his partner 6-1, 6-1.

Earlier in the quarter finals, fourth seeded Gahagan and Powel topped fifth seeded Paul Peavy and Rudy Ellison of Boston by a score of 7-5, 4-6 and 6-3 in a two-hour match. Their opponents had won the National Senior 70's Grasscourts championships in 1981 at Providence.

Over 120 senior players participated in the Charlottesville tourney from 20 states and England in the 70, 75, 80 and 85 age categories.

Cahan was named to the Super Senior Tennis Inc. board, which presently has a 1,200 player membership with headquarters in Knoxville, Tenn.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HONOR PATRIOTIC CITIZENS

Carmel Post 512 of the American Legion will again honor local patriotic citizens, businesses and organizations who fly the American flag daily. To be eligible for a flag certificate, a person must fly the flag daily at his home or business in Carmel, Carmel Highlands, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach or south to Big Sur. This is the third year the local post has awarded the flag citations.

Paul T. Artellan, the post flag display chairman, also welcomes nominations from members of the community to honor anyone who expresses patriotism by flying the flag every day.

Flag citations will be awarded at a ceremony scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the Carmel Legion Hall, Dolores near Eighth Street.

Nominations may be sent to Artellan in care of the American Legion Post 512, Carmel, 93921.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA WILL MEET

The Kappa Gamma Founders' Day Luncheon will be held Monday, Oct. 13 in Santa Cruz. All Kappas are welcome. For reservations and a ride, call Mrs. Richard F. Jones, 624-9088.

Health check-ups offered for seniors

Free health check-ups for older adults will be offered in Carmel by the SCANS (Senior Citizens and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. The SCANS clinics will be held at Sunset Center, Ninth and San Carlos, Carmel.

Persons over 55 years of age are eligible for this service. The health check-up is provideds by the health teams of SCANS, consisting of two nurses and a community service aide that travel throughout Monterey County conducting clinics where older people meet. For clinic appointments, phone 373-0111.

Learn to say 'no' in new class

Assertiveness training, or the art of saying "no" will be taught in a series of classes to begin Wednesday, Oct. 13 through Monterey Peninsula College Community Services.

The class will be taught by Joni Caldwell, MA, and will run through Nov. 10. Hours are 7-9:30 p.m. The class is designed to help women and men stand up for their rights without violating others. Participants will learn to express their beliefs and wants in honest, direct and appropriate ways in a safe and supportive environment.

Fee is $27. To register, phone 646-4057.

High school chorus to be formed

The Monterey Peninsula Community School of Music in cooperation with Monterey Peninsula College will form an All Peninsula High School Honor Chorus to be directed by Sal Ferrantelli, director of choral activities at MPC.

The chorus will meet on Tuesdays, from 7-9 p.m. in the Choral Room at Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

To register, phone the Monterey Peninsula Community School of Music, 375-3324.

Workshop on infant massage offered

A community workshop series on infant massage will be offered for parents of infants from birth through 10 months of age. Class will begin Monday, Oct. 11 from 9:30-10 a.m. at the Seaside Community Recreation Center, 500 Hilby Avenue, Seaside. There is no charge for the series.

The workshop series, which runs for six sessions, will teach parents how to relax infants by means of massage, based on the method made known by Dr. Frederick Le Boyer. Infant massage promotes improvement in baby's digestive, sleeping and crying habits.

The series will be led by Charlene Mason, and will meet on Mondays and Fridays, Oct. 11, 18, 22, 25, 29 and Nov. 5. For further information, phone 394-4622. Observers are welcome.

School district hires three full-time teachers

THREE FORMER substitute teachers have been hired full-time by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

The three new teachers, including the son of a former local superintendent of schools, assumed their duties at the beginning of the fall term.

The new teachers and their assignments are: Meredith Tibbey, second and third grades at River School; Ethyl Radowicz, fourth grade at Tularcitos School; and Steve Taylor, fourth grade at River School.

Taylor, who was a substitute teacher and coach of the high school junior varsity basketball team last year, follows in his parents' footsteps in Carmel.

He is the son of former Carmel Unified School District Supt. Harris Taylor, who retired in 1975. His mother Franc is a diagnostic education tester for the Carmel district.

Taylor said he believes in public education despite its current financial problems.

"I feel that the public education system provides the greatest learning experience for the most children," he told the Pine Cone/ Outlook. "Considering the economic situation right now, California is still the best. I've administered test scores to students from all states (and) I would say California kids do better than 99.9 percent of all of them.

"The facilities are much better than in private schools, the pay is better and in most cases the caliber of teachers is higher," Taylor continued.

"I like to teach in the public schools and I like the kids. When I'm old, they're going to be the ones responsible for the world. Part of it is selfish because these are the kids that are going to make the world a better place. Today decides tomorrow," he said.

Taylor received his bachelor of arts degree from California State University, Chico in 1975. He received his teaching credential in 1976, an all-subjects credential in 1980 and also attended graduate classes in Chico.

Before being hired full-time, Taylor taught part-time at Fremont Junior High School in Seaside and River School in Carmel for two years.

Taylor lives in Monterey with his wife, Yvette.

MEREDITH TIBBEY will teach a combined second and third grade class at River School

Mrs. Tibbey said she does not expect any unusual problems because of the combined class.

"A combined second and third grade class is probably the most ideal combined class," she said. "These particular students were chosen because of their ability to work together and get along well with others. It's a very good situation for me and the children."

Mrs. Tibbey attended public schools.

"I've been involved with public education all my life. Both my parents taught in public schools, I went to public schools and my daughters are in public schools," she said.

"It's society's job to provide a good education for all of the children and I want to be a part of that job," she added.

After teaching full-time in the Livermore and Santa Clara areas from 1964-70, Mrs. Tibbey quit to raise a family.

After moving to the Monterey Peninsula three years ago, she decided her daughters were old enough that she could teach again on a substitute basis. For the past three years she has been a substitute teacher in the Carmel schools.

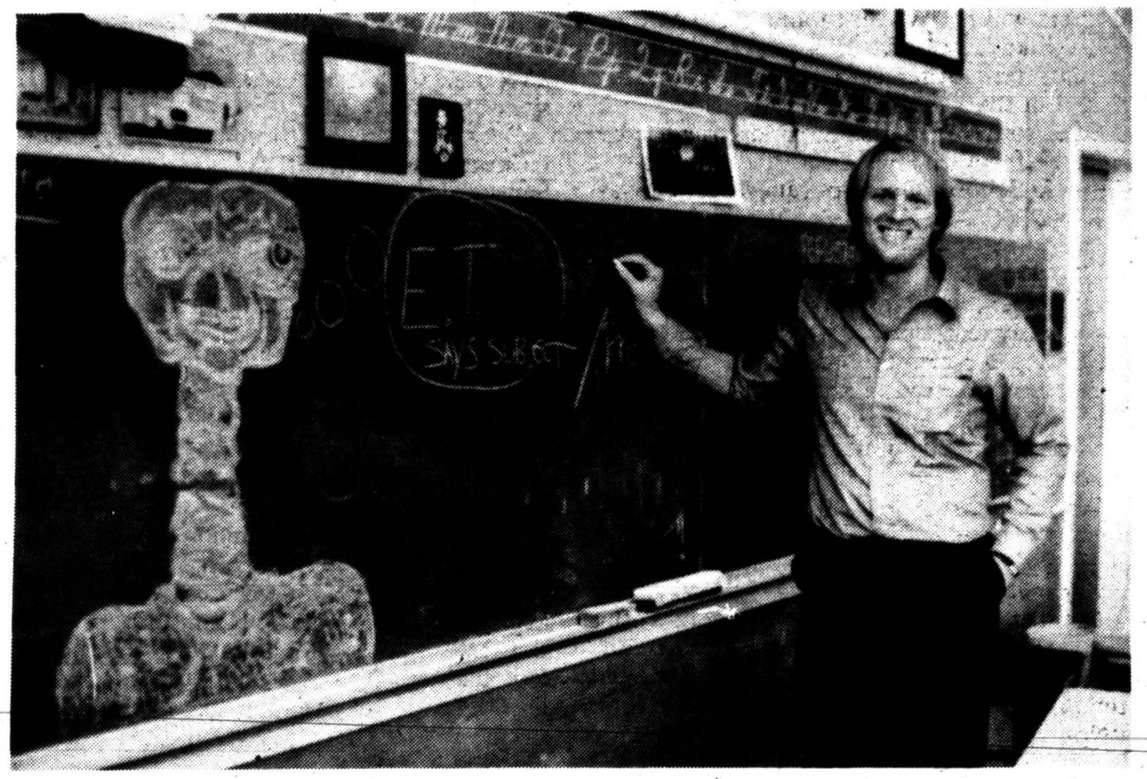
"I really enjoy the people here and the kids. I taught last quarter here and it was an adjustment for me, but now I'm looking forward to this year," Mrs. Tibbey said. She was a long-term substitute last year for a teacher who was on maternity leave.

Mrs. Tibbey received her B.A. degree from San Jose State University in 1964. She makes her home in Monterey with husband Bill, and daughters Jennifer and Kristin, fifth and sixth graders, respectively.

Like Mrs. Tibbey, Ethyl Radowicz decided to return to full-time teaching when her children became older and more independent.

"I think my children are grown enough now and they both are in high school," she said. "I feel it is now time to do something for myself. They're independent now and I feel I can afford the time to do a good job teaching."

MEREDITH TIBBEY reads a story to her combined second and third grade class at Carmel River School. (Michael R. Gardner photos.)



STEVE TAYLOR, son of former Carmel Unified School District Supt. Harris Taylor, is the new fourth grade teacher at Carmel River School.

ETHYL RADOWICZ is the new fourth grade teacher at Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley.

Taking her new position is like returning home, Mrs. Radowicz added. She was a substitute teacher in Carmel schools from 1966-68 and again from 1971-81.

Last year, Mrs. Radowicz taught at Del Monte School in Monterey, which was closed because of declining enrollments and financial problems.

Mrs. Radowicz has attended several schools as part of her continuing education, including the University of Hawaii, University of Oregon, San Jose State and MPC.

Mrs. Radowicz lives in Carmel Valley with her husband Dick and two children, Tanya and Steven. Tanya and Steven attended Tularcitos School several years ago.

River management program protest hearing is Oct. 11

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District Board will conduct a protest hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 11, in the Monterey City Council Chambers to determine if property owners along the Carmel River support the formation of the proposed Carmel River management zone.

If more than 200 of the 400 property owners who own more than 50 percent of the property object to the zone, it will be defeated. If fewer than that number object, the board can set an election of voters residing in the zone to establish funding for the program.

The Carmel River management program is being proposed to minimize future property damage from erosion and to restore vegetation along the Carmel River. The program would be implemented by a zone of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The zone would automatically expire in 1993 unless re-enacted by the voters in the zone.

The program would have an annual budget of $150,000 to support both staffing and erosion/vegetation projects. Of this amount, $45,000 would be raised from the riverfront zone and $105,000 from water users in the Cal-Am and Water West systems. The board will also conduct a public hearing to receive testimony from water users who would be charged an average annual fee of $3.43 for the program.

The board is scheduled to conduct a joint session with the Carmel City Council at 7 p.m. to discuss Carmel's participation in the district's Zone 2, which has been proposed to finance a dam on the Carmel River. The district cannot include any property within any city in the zone without that city council's approval. The cities of Pacific Grove, Seaside, Sand City and Del Rey Oaks have already agreed to join the zone. The city of Carmel requested the joint session so that they could better understand the district's water supply program.

Other agenda items include public hearings on water demand projections and on annexation of the San Carlos Ranch and adoption of an agreement with the state for the development of a Carmel River watershed management plan.

Carmel teachers to get 3 percent pay increase

By MICHAEL GARDNER

TEACHERS IN the Carmel Unified School District will receive a 3 percent pay increase under terms of a new contract expected to be approved by the board of education Oct. 12.

Other major agenda items before trustees that night include an enrollment report that may determine the future of Carmel High School and Middle School and a proposal for an additional teaching position at Carmel Valley High School.

Trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Room 2 of Carmel High School.

The approximately 50 members of the Carmel Teachers Association, which represents the entire district instructional staff, voted unanimously Oct. 4 to accept the 3 percent offer.

In addition to the pay increase, terms of the new one-year contract stipulate that teachers will receive up to another 5 percent salary hike if the district receives additional monies from other sources not already included in the 1982-83 budget.

One source of those funds would be revenue from the lease of the now-closed Carmelo School to a corporation for renovation as a retirement complex. Under terms of the lease, the district will receive $105,000 annually. However, the complex probably will not be open until spring so the district will not realize the entire $105,000 this fiscal year, according to Supt. William Rand.

The new contract also stipulates that the district will pay any additional costs for the teachers' fringe benefits, such as medical insurance. However, the funds for the increases will be pro-rated out of any contingency funds that would have been allocated toward the additional 5 percent salary increase.

"Under the circumstances, looking at the budget, I don't see how it could be any different," CTA President Imogene Speiser told the Pine Cone/Outlook after the vote. "Now, after the election, it is up to the state legislature to come up with some kind of education financing bill."

The 3 percent salary increase will cost the district approximately $150,000, Rand said.

Teachers originally asked the board for a 4 percent salary increase plus another 9.9 percent hike as a cost of living adjustment.

In addition to final approval of the contract, the board will also receive a report from the administrative staff on how the increase will affect the 1982-83 budget.

•

THE FUTURE of the secondary school campuses will probably be determined by an enrollment projection report that will be given to the board Oct. 12.

Superintendent Rand said he will probably base his report on enrollment as of Oct. 6.

Trustees are not expected to take any action at the Oct. 12 session. Rand said he will ask the board to study the figures and take "any appropriate action" at the next session, which is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 26.

According to district enrollment reports, attendance at all schools has steadily declined since the early 1970s.

Because of the declining enrollment, trustees closed Carmel Woods and Carmelo Schools last spring.

The most recent enrollment projection is that the decline will continue through 1985.

The only grade level to show an increase in attendance this fall is kindergarten, according to Sept. 23 enrollment reports.

Total kindergarten enrollment is 168 students, compared to 134 last year. However, it is still less than the total of 193 kindergarten students enrolled in 1974-75.

School officials will have to project whether the increase is a "fluke" or evidence of a trend that may eventually lead to enrollment increases a decade from now.

Enrollment figures are used to determine average daily attendance figures, upon which the state figures the amount of subsidies to the district. The Carmel Unified School District will receive approximately $1,920 from the state for each full-time student enrolled in 1982-83.

ON THE issue of Carmel Valley High School staffing, trustees need to determine whether the district can afford $22,500 to hire an additional teacher.

Carmel Valley High School had three full-time teachers last year plus teaching principal Jim Kohnke.

However, because of financial problems and declining enrollment, temporary English teacher Leslie Holt was not rehired. Kohnke and teachers Bruce Stannard and Blake Fuessenich have assumed the English teaching duties.

Trustees voted 3-2 on May 25 not to rehire a teacher for the position, despite objections from the high school staff and district administrators. The two trustees who supported hiring the additional teacher are Harold Santee and Joan Cathey.

But a majority did agree to review the proposal again after the final budget was adopted. The budget was adopted in early September.

Carmel Valley High School, with an average enrollment over the year of between 40 and 50 students, needs four teachers, Kohnke told the Pine Cone/Outlook Sept. 30. CVHS is a continuation school for students who are unable, for personal or academic reasons, to attend Carmel High School.

"We have an extremely divergent group of kids with extremely divergent needs. We have to have the programs succeed if the kids are to succeed," Kohnke said.

Kohnke pointed out that three out of every four Carmel Valley High School students continue their education at other levels, including college and trade school.

Other features of the program at CVHS pointed out by Kohnke in a report:

- "A positive environment, openness, trust and sincere caring.
- "Strong emphasis on basic skills.
- "Individualized programs tailored to the individual needs of the students.
- "A monitoring system which aids in developing student responsibility and keeps the staff on top of student needs.
- "A career education program has been recently added, five units of which are required for graduation. This program is designed to aid the student to discover, through testing and research, future career opportunities.
- "Computer science program is another recent addition, which has been made possible by grants from FOCUS (Friends of Carmel Unified Schools) and the Bing Crosby Youth Fund. This program is designed to develop computer literacy and basic programing skills.
- "As an after school physical education event, Bruce Stannard, a CVHS teacher, gives weekly windsurfing lessons.
- "We also have field trips, sponsored by students and parents, which broaden our students' understanding of the community. And guest speakers, who bring the community to CVHS.
- "The parents of CVHS students are forming a support organization called Friends of Carmel Valley High School, which is made up of parents, parents of former students, and alumni."

It's really a dog's life!

A DOG that hangs around school yards is bound to get thirsty and this black Labrador retriever at Carmel High School was no exception as he appeared to be asking for assistance in getting a drink (above). Fortunately, a helping hand arrived and the pooch got his drink (below). (Michael R. Gardner photos).

Handicapped school struggles to stay afloat

By ROBERT MISKIMON

A SPECIAL program for handicapped people on the Monterey Peninsula faces a sink-or-swim battle for survival in the months ahead.

It's the Kern Swim School in Monterey, which is dedicated to teaching children and young adults to swim with ease and confidence. It currently serves about 70 persons from the Monterey Peninsula, 10 of them from the Carmel/Carmel Valley area.

The program operates through the non-profit Josephine Kernes Memorial for Education in a privately-owned swimming pool in Monterey. The pool is owned by Edith Perry, who started the school in 1972. Mrs. Perry and her husband now live near Santa Rosa.

For most of the handicapped persons who have been involved with the Kern Swim School, it has been not only a learning experience but a confidence-booster which helps individuals in all areas of their lives, according to Jana Johnson of Carmel Highlands, a member of the board of directors of the school.

Mrs. Johnson, who works in the building and planning department at Carmel City Hall, got involved with the Kern Swim School several years ago after a lifetime fear of the water.

"When I was little, my father built a swimming pool for me and my mother; we both had polio," Mrs. Johnson told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "I was about six or so and I went under in the shallow end one day. I remember trying to call for help when I was under water.

"Ever since that, I was terrified of water and never learned to swim," she said.

But Mrs. Johnson said she realized how much she had missed when she went on a vacation to Hawaii with her husband last Christmas. "It was really a drag to be there with all that water and not to be able to enjoy it," she said.

So when she returned home, Mrs. Johnson became involved with a swim program at Monterey Peninsula College and learned some of the basics from instructor Chris Pappas. But because the instructor was busy with other classes and couldn't devote enough time to Mrs. Johnson, he referred her to the Kern Swim School.

"When I went there, I learned to swim in about three lessons," Mrs. Johnson recalled. "It's been absolutely fantastic for me. "Now I swim a half-mile about twice a week for exercise. The pool is indoors, kept at 92 degrees, and the teacher — Marvella Peterman — is a very compassionate, low-key, effective teacher.

OVERCOMING FEAR of the water is one of the primary goals of Kern Swim School, as it instructs the handicapped in swimming skills. Director Marvella Peterman (right) works with 10-year-old Scott Dusenbury of Carmel in a lesson at the school's Monterey pool.

"I learned to swim painlessly, she said. "It was such a revelation to me. And I've met some really neat people there. It's really helped me feel more self-confident, and helped me to overcome the feeling of being out of control."

•

MRS. JOHNSON said the exercise from swimming has helped her overall health and outlook on life. Her primary source of exercise before she learned to swim was walking — a painful and limiting experience for someone on crutches.

The non-profit school charges $40 per month for students who take swimming lessons twice a week, and $20 a month for those handicapped persons who already have learned to swim but who want to swim laps.

The school operates with an anual budget of only about $15,000, which covers the salary of the director, Marvella Peterman, and operating expenses. When there is a need for maintenance, as there was recently, funds are not adequate.

'I learned to swim painlessly, she said. 'It was such a revelation to me. And I've met some really neat people there. It's really helped me feel more self-confident, and helped me to overcome the feeling of being out of control.'

"Marvella didn't get paid last month," Mrs. Johnson pointed out. "Our program is in real financial difficulty. We rely on donations and Easter Seals is supposed to help, but they have have not held up their end of the deal lately.

"Something always needs repair. If we could get $1,000, it would help us out of a hole," Mrs. Johnson said.

Representatives of the school planned to request funds from the Carmel City Council as part of the city's annual grants to social service organizations, and possibly to put on a rummage sale or other fund-raising events, Mrs. Johnson said.

JANA JOHNSON, who works in the building and planning department at Carmel City Hall, had a lifelong fear of the water before she learned to swim in the Kern Swim School in Monterey. Mrs. Johnson now serves on the school's board of directors.

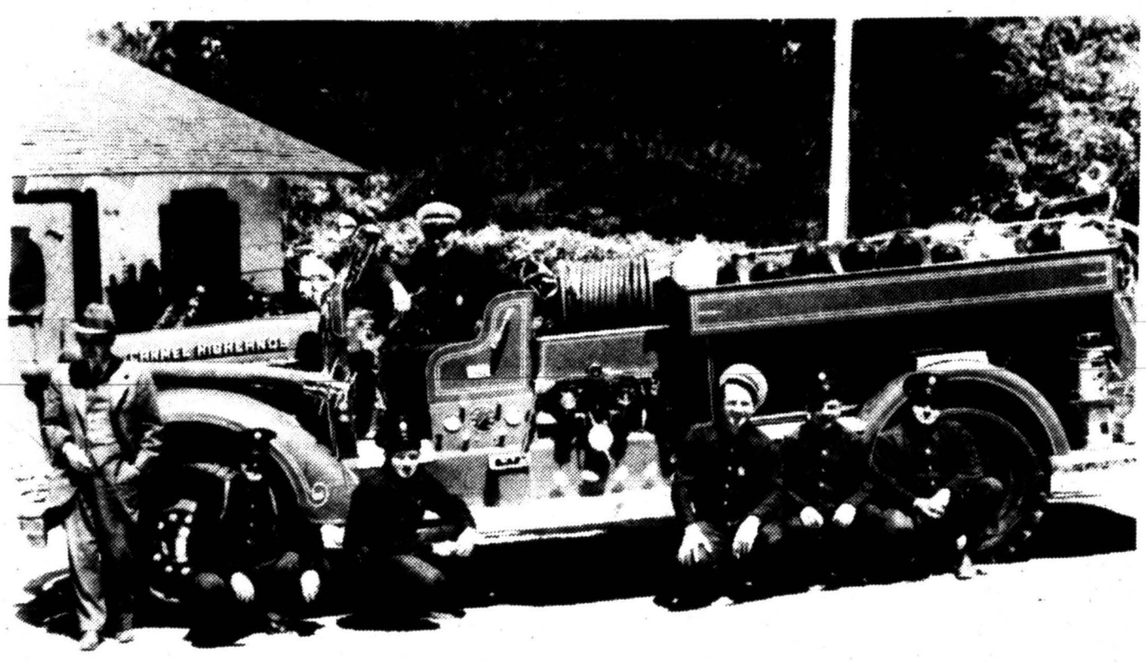
Goals of the school, as articulated in a brochure, are:

- Provision of individual help to handicapped people.
- Development of lifelong aquatic skills.
- Promotion of social skills and patterns of healthy living.
- Provision of competition and a challenge for conditioning and correction of physical defects.

"Swimmers pay fees for operating costs and for maintenance, but there is nothing left over for maintenance," Ms. Peterman said. "Some of the service organizations have helped in the past with donations of specific items. Now, we're planning to get a slide presentation together to take to the various service organizations, to educate them and to seek funds.

"In January, we completely refurbished the pool, so our monthly expenses jumped from around $400 to around $2,000," the director said. What about other sources of charitable contributions for the school?

"United Way is really hard for an organization our size," Ms. Peterman said. "They expect the organization to do a lot of paper work, and to do a lot of talking for United Way."



THE CARMEL Highlands Fire Protection District will celebrate its 50th birthday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday Oct. 9 at the station, Fern Canyon Road about four miles south of Carmel off Highway 1. Highlands fire department celebrates 50th year with an open house Oct. 9

THE CARMEL Highlands Fire Protection will celebrate its 50th year of service with a special open house from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 9.

The open house, which is being held in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week Oct. 3-9, will be celebrated at the fire station, 73 Fern Canyon Road, about four miles south of Carmel of Highway 1.

Firefighters will distribute and install free smoke detectors to the first 100 residents of the district who attend the open house. Plastic helmets and firefighting cards (similar to baseball cards) will be given to children free. Refreshments will also be served.

Demonstrations will include firefighting techniques, use of emergency first aid, equipment and smoke detectors, and home fire safety.

The district was formed Oct. 1, 1932 and covers an area of about six square miles. It extends from Carmel Meadows and the Fish Ranch to the north, to Mal Paso and Otter Cove to the south.

The first fire chief was Thomas Fisher (1932-1938). He was followed by Jack Eaton (1938-1953), Seizo Kadani (1953-1973), Robert Meloney (1973-1982), and Skee Stanley (1982-present).

The department currently operates two engines and a light rescue truck. Paid staff includes the chief, a captain, and two full-time and one part-time engineer. In addition, there are 20 volunteers.

Personnel are trained in cliff rescue, fire investigation, fire prevention, public education and land management during marine rescues.

The district is governed by a board of directors.

In addition to fires, the department responds to calls for medical emergencies and public assistance.

For more information, call the department at 624-2374.

Sierra Club endorses Democrats

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club has endorsed three Democrats for office in the November election.

Incumbent Congressman Leon Panetta of Carmel Valley has been endorsed for re-election to the 16th District.

Panetta's Republican opponent is G. Richard Arnold of Santa Cruz.

Incumbent state Assemblyman Sam Farr of Carmel has been endorsed for re-election in the 28th Assembly District.

Farr will be challenged by Republican James Peter Cost of Pebble Beach.

The Ventana Chapter has also recommended the election of Democrat Kurt Kupper in the newly-redistricted 29th Assembly District, which includes Carmel Valley, King City, and sections of south Monterey County.

Kupper is a member of the San Luis Obispo County Board of Supervisors.

Kupper will face Republican Eric Seastrand of Salinas in the November election.

A VALUABLE PAINTING

Waudesford's beautiful painting of the Carmel Mission, executed in 1874 (before the buildings were restored to their present condition), will shortly find a place in Golden Gate Park Memorial Museum. It is the gift of citizens whose desire is to preserve the work for its historical value.

The picture shows Father Serra's house, and there are also many details depicted which do not exist today.

JOE KOBUS RECEIVES MEDAL

Joseph D. Kobus of Carmel Valley was presented with the American Forest Fire Medal at the American Forestry Association's annual conference in Madison, Wisconsin. During the past 20 years only 11 such medals have been presented. Making the award was R. E. McArdle, chief, Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture.

This is the second recognition Mr. Kobus has received for his heroic action in the Thompson Park Fire in Los Padres National Forest on September 6, 1955, when he saved the lives of four men. In May he received a citation for Superior Service Award from Secretary of Agriculture Benson presented at ceremonies on the Washington Monument grounds in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Kobus, a Forest Service employee, has been a fire control aide on the Monterey District of the Los Padres National Forest since 1948. He is the husband of the former Carol Card of Carmel.

CITY SUFFERS BROKEN COLLAR BONE IN "GAME" WITH CURB

Members of the city council will not stand by and watch without protest the breaking of Carmel's collar bone.

At least this was their decision Wednesday night when Mayor John Catlin charged that the curb on San Carlos street in front of Mimmler's service station had been deliberately broken without permission.

According to Catlin, the curb was broken to allow automobiles to pass from the service station to the street more easily. Members of the council agreed with Catlin and urged prosecution of the guilty party.

"It's time that we stop this willful violation of the law," Catlin told the council. "Unless we prosecute the person responsible for the damage, we'll have similar violations from time to time."

At the order of the council, Police Chief Gus Englund was instructed to investigate the matter fully, swear out a complaint and arrest those involved in tearing up the curb.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

When Dame Judith Anderson visited the Peninsula recently to attend the dedication of the Jeffers Room at the Monterey Conference Center and attend a tour of Tor House, Robinson Jeffers's Carmel Point stone house, she was feted practically around the clock.

When she mentioned to David Hughes, Carmel city councilman and owner of the David shop in town, that she didn't have the right jewelry to wear with the caftans she had recently adopted, David had just the right answer.

He presented Dame Judith with a impressive neckpiece from the Peterson Conway collection of antique Afghanistan jewelry. Its Russian silver, ancient carnelian and fine amber blended perfectly with the great lady's gowns!

DESPITE FLAP, CITY BUYS U.N. FLAGS

The Carmel City Council played taps in August when it was proposed the city design and fly a municipal flag.

But City Hall is stocking up on United Nations flags, one of which flies in Devendorf Park. Authorities spent $75.00 on Sept. 9 for five U.N. flags.

One flagmaker has told Carmel it could supply six municipal flags for $425, provided the design was supplied with the order.

City Administrator Jack Collins said the city purchased the flags in quantity to get a discount. Nylon flags have a life expectancy of about six to eight months.

Japanese photographer shows prints from CHS graduation

IMPRESSED WITH the enthusiasm of students in American schools during graduation week, Japanese freelance photographer Toshio Mori was on the Carmel High School campus last June to capture the moments on film.

The results of Mori's photographic peek at CHS graduation were previewed at a special reception Oct. 3 at the home of Don and India Harrison of Carmel Valley.

Mori, who speaks very little English, was struck by the jubilation shown by American students at graduation time, which is a somber occasion in Japan, said Mrs. Harrison.

Mori returned again this semester to continue to photograph Carmel High students. After several days here, he left for Japan yesterday (Oct. 6). Mori is expected to return later this year to take more photographs of Carmel students.

Mori came to Carmel because he is friends with the Harrison's son, Brink and his wife, Beth, whom he met in Kyoto. The younger Harrisons still live in Japan. He also wanted to pay a return visit to friend Peter Magee, owner of Miner's Gallery Americana in Carmel.

During his stay in June, Mori photographed all of the activities related to graduation week including the dance, casino night, parties at the beach and the ceremony itself.

He also photographed students Theresa Brochinni and Tim Auger at their homes.

The photographs were first exhibited at the Lucian Gallery in Kyoto under the title "Graduation." Another exhibit is scheduled for view at the Nikon Gallery in Tokyo.

Examples of his works exhibited in Japan were displayed at the Harrison's home.

The 50-year-old Mori worked with photographic printing and publishing companies until he decided to become a freelancer in 1978. He is a member of the Japan Professional Photographers Society. His images have also appeared in several magazines.

THE JOYS and sadness of graduation day was captured by Japanese photographer Toshio Mori during ceremonies at Carmel High School in June 1982. Pictured are graduates Amery Burleigh (left) and Aileen Kelly.

There will also be a profile and review of the work of professor Edna Fisher, who observed sea otters for more than 40 years, to be presented by Alan Baldridge, librarian of the Hopkins Marine Station in Pacific Grove.

There will also be a presentation of the first Dr. Betty Davis Memorial Award. Interested members of the public are invited.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Becoming true patriots

Last week on my return trip from Newfoundland I changed planes in Toronto. In a conservative newspaper I read an article about a speech made by the new minister of Energy, Jean Chretien.

Canadians know a great deal about American politics and politicians, but how many Americans even knew to what party the Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau or Joe Clark, the opposition, belong.

The minister, in a long rambling speech said: "Despite negativism, Canada is a fantastic country. However, we ignore the good things about Canada and we have become a nation of complaining 'bitches.'" We wonder if these observations could apply to Canada's neighbor to the south.

Many of us have forgotten that no nation is perfect but that ours is the best there is. Help us, oh Lord, to become true patriots; decrying what is wrong in our system and resolving to do all we can to right the abuse.

Help us, oh Lord, to become an active part of the great traditions of our founding fathers. May we never betray their dreams. Help us to be proud of our nation for the right reasons. Give us the patience to overcome our shortcomings. May we never be ashamed to wave the flag and when needed, to wash out its spots. A flag has to be worthy to wave. A good detergent is the wise use of our franchise. Amen.

All Saints schedules work day

Lively Art series opens at Sunset Center

ED METZGER will star as Albert Einstein, The Practical Bohemian, a presentation of Carmel's Lively Arts Festival Saturday, Oct. 16 at Sunset Center.

By RICHARD TYLER
Director, Sunset Center

SUNSET CENTER wil again present the second year of the Lively Arts series. Previous artists who have appeared on the Sunset stage for this series include Pat Carroll in her award winning portrayal of Gertrude Stein; the legendary Anna Russell; Oscar winner Anne Baxter and the world renowned Les Ballet Trockadero de Monte Carlo.

The current season is a season of varied entertainment bringing to Carmel three performers who have not appeared here before. Returning for their third appearance, the Magic Circus of Taiwan fills out the series. Each artist is in the top class of his field and it is with great anticipation that we look forward to having them in Carmel.

Albert Einstein conjures up a brainy sort of lecture, but as Ed Metzger portrays him, we meet the personal man, the humerous man, the insightful man who looks at the frailties of man and helps us to live with them. Ed Metzger has received plaudits for his portrayal.

Metzger has appeared with Al Pacino on stage in Arturo Ui as well as performing with him in the film Dog Day Afternoon where he was commended for his strong and effective characterization of a police detective.

Other Broadway and Off-Broadway appearances include Uncle Vanya, Nighthawks, Home of the Brave, and Brecht on Brecht. He has been a guest star on many television programs including Kojak, Baretta, Bionic Woman, Mannix, Bonanza and High Chaparrel. Early in his career he appeared with Elizabeth Taylor and Marlon Brando in Reflections in A Golden Eye and more recently was in the popular film comedy, Car Wash.

There is a lot more to Einstein than his theory of relativity and this performance lets us in on his full awareness of his genuine or apparent eccentricities and failings. There are also his twinkling humor, his Jewish consciousness, his passion for vanilla ice cream and music (he played the violin, poorly). It is a performance of unusual tenderness and delicacy and a lovely tour de force by Ed Metzger.

Martha Schlamme is recognized as one of the outstanding interpreters of the songs of Kurt Weill. But she does not confine her talents to just this realm of music, but comfortably travels through musical comedy, love songs and cabaret songs while commenting on various attitudes of society.

In an era of hyper-kinetic superstars who assault our aural perceptions at high decibel levels, substituting energy and sheer volume of sound for talent and musicality, Ms. Schlamme's bittersweet and gently nostalgic "Concert Cabaret" is a rare and welcome treat for frazzled nerves. Like Jean Brodie, Ms. Schlamme is in her prime, a fine figure of a woman and a genuine artist.

She is one of the few European stars who has made herself at home in America where she has built up a huge following and has enjoyed considerable success in New York. Her unique brand of entertainment has illuminated the New York stage for some time and she also has the distinction of being one of the few vocalists to have appeared at Canada's Stratford Festival.

Her "Concert Cabaret" is in some ways a distillation of some of the best known and best loved songs of Kurt Weill with more recent works by Stephen Sondheim, Melissa Manchester, Carol Hall and Richard Malt — by interspersing

Take an armchair visit to Vienna with Explorama

Explorama, the travel film organization, will open its 20th anniversary season Thursday, Oct. 14 with the new documentary film The Romance of Vienna at Sunset Theater, Carmel. The film will be narrated in person by its producer, Chris Borden. It will be screened three times: Thursday, Oct. 14 at 8:15 p.m. and Friday, Oct. 15 at 2:30 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

Highlights of the film include the Vienna Boys Choir, the Spanish Riding School and the famed Lippizaner Horses, the mystery of Mayerling, the Vienna Woods and the Blue Danube. The film score is composed of the music of Schubert, Mozart, Hayden, Beethoven and Strauss.

Vienna, musical capital of the world, dates its musical heritage back to the medieval minstrel, Walter von der Bogelweide, known as Lieber Augustin. Extraordinary musical figures from Vienna include Hayden, Mozart, Beethoven, Franz Schubert, Brahms and the Strauss family.

A city of two million with an area of only 134 square miles, but with the feel of a village, Vienna offers her thousands of visitors a unique blend and combination of freshness and gaiety, pomp and circumstance.

Six other new documentaries, also narrated in person by their producers, make up the balance of the Explorama season. The People of Portugal by Fran Reidelberter will screen in November; Fabulous Tibet by Jens Bjerre, January; Robert Frost's New England by Dewitt Jones, February; The Hawaiian Adventure by Doug Jones,March; Bountiful New Zealand by Sid Dodson, April and Image of Greece by Kenneth Richter, which will screen in May.

Explorama was first presented in 1963 in the California Academy of Sciences Building in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. As few as 50 people attended some of the performances that first season. Last year over 250,000 people attended Explorama performances in northern California. Today, it is the largest travel adventure film organization in the United States.

Sunset Theater is at Ninth and San Carlos, Carmel.

Reserved seat series tickets are $33.25. Single program tickets are $5.75. Tickets and a fully illustrated brochure are available by writing Explorama, 701 Sutter Street, San Francisco, 94109, or by phoning, 415-771-4733. Tickets are also available locally at Abinante Music, 372-5893.

Quartet will present an evening of classical music at Sunset Center

The Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will present the Quartetto Beethoven Di Roma, a piano quartet, Friday, Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

The program will include Mozart's Quartet in E-flat Major, K.493; Mahler's Quartettsatz; and Faure's Quartet in C Minor, Op. 15.

Violinist Feix Ayo, violist Alfonso Ghedin, cellist Enzo Altobelli and pianist Carlo Bruno are all professors at the Conservatory of Santa Cecilia in Rome. Each string player was a soloist of the celebrated I Musici.

Formed during the Beethoven Bi-Centenary in 1970, the Quartetto has toured successfully around the world, playing in Europe, the Americas, and the far east. They have recorded for EMI-Angel, Toshiba, and Everest/Cetra Records.

"A flawless ensemble — exquisitely in tune, tempos steady and always finely balanced, said the Nashville Banner.

Tickets are $7.50 and will be available at the door. Season tickets will be sold during the intermission.

For further information, phone 624-8261, ext 430.

THE FIRST family of guitar, The Romeros, will open the Monterey County Symphony season with a concert at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 11 at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Guitars featured in Carmel concert

The Royal Family of the Guitar, The Romeros, will appear with the Monterey County Symphony Monday, Oct. 11 at Sunset Theater, Carmel. They will also give a performance Sunday, Oct. 10 at King Hall, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey.

This concert opens the 1982-83 concert season for the Symphony. The Romeros will perform Concierto Iberico by Moreno, plus concert music for four guitars. Other works on the program include Richard Strauss's symphonic poem Don Juan, the Emperor Waltz by Johann Strauss, and the ever popular Sorcerer's Apprentice. Music director Haymo Taeuber will conduct.

As a quartet, The Romeros have performed with virtually every major U.S. symphony orchestra. They have consistently dazzled audiences everywhere and have inspired enthusiastic praise from critics coast to coast.

Music critic, Raymond Ericson of The New York Times, wrote: "As soloists and as a quartet, they offered music that was effective and varied. The players are technically flawless and have a perfect sense of rhythm. Together they were wonderful. Individually, The Romeros were no less exciting."

Tickets are available at Sunset Center, Room 7, Carmel. For furthe. information, phone 624-8511.

Classic western 'Red River' to be screened

The Great American Western Film Festival will continue with Red River, Tuesday, Oct. 12 at 8 p.m. at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Howard Hawk's Red River is perhaps the consummate film dealing with his favorite theme — the conflect between man and his environment. John Wayne is a man who in his earlier days fights with all his strength to carve a ranch out of worthless land. At the same time, he brings up an orphan whom he adopts.

Years later, with the ranch seemingly tamed, Wayne is forced to drive his cattle an impossible distance. Slowly he is driven crazy by his battle with nature. He loses his grip, and the relationship with his son deteriorates. Hawks cinematically achieves a rhythm, scope and grandeur that many westerns aim at but few realize.

Red River boasts a memorable cast including Montgomery Clift, Joanne Dru, Walter Brennen, John Ireland, Noah Beery, Jr. and Harry ´ arey.

Series tickets for this film festival can be obtained at the director's office at Sunset Center, Carmel. Single tickets are available for $2.

For further information, phone 624-3996.

Film review:

Don't be tempted to see 'The Tempest'

By ANNE TELFORD

Tempest. With John Cassavetes, Gena Rowlands and Susan Sarandon. Directed by Paul Mazursky. A Columbia Pictures release.

"It's all here, beauty, magic, excitement," says Phillip Dimetrios, successful architect, upon arrival at a deserted Greek island. Too bad those same qualities aren't in Tempest, Paul Mazursky's new film on families, social mores and mid-life crises.

Writer-director-actor-producer Mazursky is best known for his films dealing with relationships, beginning with the highly successful Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice, through Alex in Wonderland, Blume in Love, Harry and Tonto, An Unmarried Woman — which brought Jill Clayburgh anOscar nomination for best actress — and more recently Willie & Phil.

As a script writer Mazursky has come up with some winners. An Unmarried Woman was a powerful look at the emotional evolution of a woman whose husband suddenly leaves her. Harry and Tonto, a bittersweet treatise on aging, won Art Carney the Academy Award for best actor as a 72 year old school teacher who travels west with his cat, experiencing life on the road.

In contrast Tempest is a disappointing film. Cassavetes as Phillip, has some pretentious speeches to make, he trys to remain serious throughout but just ends up looking silly. Susan Sarandon, who plays Aretha, has some of the best lines in the film. "Neurotic is something I've always understood," she tells Phillip, who is practicing celibacy on their island and understandably frustrating the adventurous young woman who feels her "adventure turning into a life sentence."

The best scenes in Tempest are between Phillip and Antonia, played ably by Gena Rowlands, Cassavetes off-screen wife as well. Their break-up scenes are raw and powerful drama, vaguely frightening with their starkly realistic dialogue.

The only nod to Shakespeare's The Tempest on which Mazursky's film is loosely based, is the naming of two of the characters, Caliban and Miranda, and the feminization of Antonio, Prospero's brother, into Antonia, Prospero/Phillip's wife.

Caliban, the savage and deformed slave, has become Caliban, the Americanized goatherd with a Sony Trinitron in his cave, a silver metallic jacket and an insatiable lust for Miranda, Phillip's daughter. Raul Julia has some amusing scenes as Caliban, but nothing to tax his talent.

There are some vague plot similarities as well. Phillip exhorts the Greek sky to "come on, show me the magic" while angling his glasses to catch the sun's reflection, much as Prospero causes a storm to visit his island. Cassavetes as the vain and neurotic king of high tech architecture, pulling grey hairs out of his chest, intoning "I dream what I don't do" is believable. Cassavetes as a crazed ascetic, wearing a kimono and causing the Mediterranean to roar, is not only unbelievable, but embarrassing.

The use of flashbacks in Tempest to explain plot logic is a good device and wisely employed by Mazursky. Other notable aspects of the film are the musical score by Stomu Yamashta and The Muse and Susan Sarandon's acting which just won her the Premio Pasinetti award for Best Actress by the National Association of Italian Film Journalists for her performance.

Mazursky and his wife Betsy have brief roles as a theater producer and his wife confronted by a very drunk Phillip at a party thrown by Antonia to celebrate her return to the stage. In a sobering scene of mid-life breakdown, Phillip makes a total fool of himself and expresses his subconscious resentment of his wife's decision to return to her career.

Unfortunately there aren't enough scenes like those to sustain two and a half hours of rambling, confused philosophy.

Ultimately, Nino — Aretha's handsome and faithful terrier — steals the film right out from under the noses of some of the best actors currently working in film, who just don't have enough to bite into with Tempest.

What's playing at the movies

Class of 1984: Another wild high school movie. Rated R. At the State Three Cinema.

Concert and Stir Crazy: A double feature with funny man Richard Pryor at his best. At the State Three Cinemas.

E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial: A million-dollar creature from outer space who has a magical life of its own. Children and adults will love Steven Spielberg's fantasy film about a creature from outer space stranded on Earth. Humor and wonder combine as a 10-year-old boy assumes responsibility for E.T.'s safety while searching for a way to reunite him with his own kind. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Fast Times at Ridgemont High: A comedy based on the best-seller by Cameron Crowe, who sneaked back to his high school alma mater several years after graduation and infiltrated the senior class. Rated R. At the Regency.

Incubus: Horror movie. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

My Favorite Year: by M-G-M, turns back the clock to 1954 in New York, and the popular "Golden Age" of live television, as the setting for one of this year's most original and engaging comedies. Stars Peter O'Toole, Jessica Harper, Joseph Bologna and introducing Mark Linn-Baker. At Cinema 70.

The Long Good Friday: An exciting British gangster movie based on the Cagney-Robinson American classics of the thirties. Starring Bob Hoskins as Harold Shand, the number-one hood in London, who wants to go legit. Helen Mirren plays a super-intelligent moll. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

On Golden Pond: Katherine Hepburn and Henry Fonda, Academy Award winners for Best Actress and Best Actor, offer a story of a couple still passionately in love after 48 years. Jan Fonda plays their daughter. Rated P.G. At the Golden Bough.

Pink Floyd The Wall: A story about Pink, a Rock and Roll performer who has had too many shows, too much dope, too much applause and is a burn out case. It is told simply with music of Pink Floyd, images and natural effects. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre.

Quadrophenia: Starring The Who. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre.

The Road Warrior: An extraordinary mythological tale, full of exciting action sequences and suspense. Mel Gibson (the dark-haired soldier of "Gallipoli") stars as an invincible hero of a barren and lawless wasteland. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. Rated R. At the Dream Theatre.

Tempest: A contemporary comedy with dramatic overtones about a man (played by John Cassavetes) who, no longer able to tolerate the compromises he has made, flees a stormy Manhattan marriage (Susan Sarandon) for a nearly deserted Greek island with his daughter Miranda (Molly Ringwald). Also starring Gena Rowlands, Vittorio Gassman, Raul Julia and Sam Robards. At the Village Theater.

Visiting Hours: A horror movie that will have you on the edge of your seat. At the Regency.

Yes, Giorgio: A romantic comedy with Luciano Pavarotti playing the title role of Giorgio Fini, a world famous Italian opera singer on a triumphant concert tour of the United States when he is stricken with a sudden "crisis of the voice." Kathryn Harrold plays the beautiful Dr. Pamela Taylor. Eddie Albert as Henry Pollack is the smooth talking, sympathetic manager and friend. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough Theatre.

Free films offered at Monterey library

Two free films will be shown today, Thursday, Oct. 7 at the Monterey Public Library.

Pilgrim Adventure, 54 minutes long, chronicles the gripping and often heart-breaking experiences of the small band of 17th century Separatists whose indomitable courage and determination against tremendous odds formed a brilliant chapter in the history of western man.

Railway with a Heart of Gold shows an old narrow gauge railroad winding through the countryside of Wales from an abandoned slate mine to sea as it is restored by a group of railroad buffs.

The library is at 625 Pacific Street, Monterey. For further information, phone 646-3930.

Pianist Fran Wiens appears in concert

Bronson Concerts presents the first piano recital in its 1982-83 Keyboard Artist Series Saturday, Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. at Sunset Center, Carmel.

The first concert will feature pianist Frank Wiens, Artist in Residence at the Conservatory of Music at the University of the Pacific in Stockton. Wiens was the bronze medalist in the 1978 Three Rivers International Piano Competition.

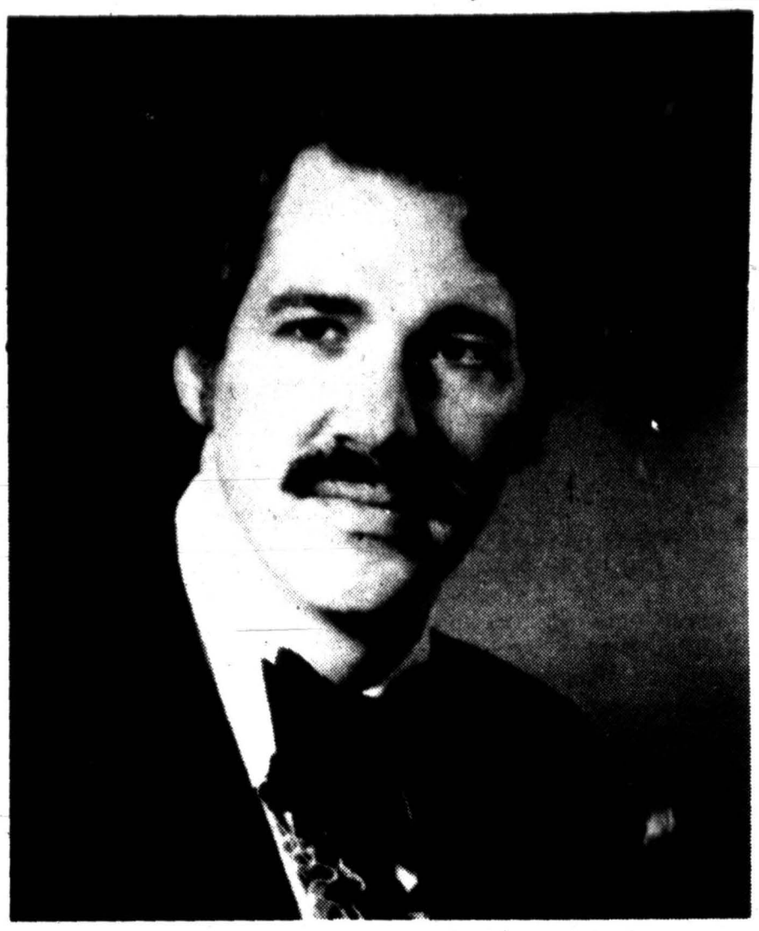
A native of New Haven, Connecticut, Wiens has studied with such illustrious teachers as Gyorgy Sandor, Leon Fleischer and Lili Krauss. As a winner of several important piano competitions, he is an active young performing artist and this season represents his ninth tour of the United States.

Wiens' program will consist of Bach's Sheep May Safely Graze, arranged by Egon Petri; Beethoven's Sonata in E Flat Major, Op. 7; Liszt's Mephisto Waltz; three selections by Chopin and will conclude with the Blue Danube Waltz in a rarely heard concert transcription by Schulz-Evler.

The second concert in the subscription series will be Sunday, February 13, 1983, with 24 year old Los Angeles pianist Jeffrey Kahane, the youngest prize winner in the 1981 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition in Fort Worth, Texas.

The final concert will present Andre-Michel Schub, grand prize winner of the 1981 Van Cliburn competition. Schub was also winner of the 1974 Naumburg Foundation Award and the 1977 Avery Fischer Prize.

For ticket information, phone 625-0797.



FRANK WIENS will perform the first piano recital of the Bronson concerts 1982-83 Keyboard Artist Series Saturday, Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Auditions open at NPG

The Naval Postgraduate School Little Theater will hold auditions for Harry Cauley's Paisley Convertible, Thursday, Oct. 7 from 7-10 p.m. at King Hall Auditorium, Naval Postgraduate School, Del Monte Blvd., Monterey.

Actors, stage hands and musicians are needed. Eligibility includes active duty and retired military and their dependents, NPS faculty and civilian personnel and their dependents who hold valid privilege cards, and Navy Reserve.

For further information, phone 646-2466.

Folklore manuscripts sought

Manuscripts dealing with folklore are being accepted for an anthology published by Creative With Words Publications, a non-profit magazine now published on the Monterey Peninsula after changing location from Los Angeles to Carmel.

Manuscripts can consist of poems, articles, anecdotes, tall tales, slogans, jokes, superstitions; but must all contain something that is folklore. Brevity counts. Forward typed manuscripts with SASE to Editor, 24665 Cabrillo St., Carmel, CA, 93923.

Bloodmobile in Carmel Valley

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Carmel Valley Community Center, Paso Hondo and Village Drive, Thursday, Oct. 7 from 3-6:30 p.m.

Not everyone can donate blood, but virtually everyone is a potential receiver. Statistics show that nationally about three percent of the population is now supplying the millions of units needed by patients yearly.

For further information, phone 624-6921.

Choral society holds rehearsals

Rehearsals for Monterey Peninsula Choral Society's 20th annual Music of Christmas concerts at Carmel Mission, Dec. 10-12, are now being held in the Choral Room, Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont Blvd., Monterey, Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m., directed by Haymo Taeuber, Music Director.

Singers who read music are invited. Tenors and basses are especially needed. The Chorus performs with Monterey County Symphony Chamber Orchestra and top soloists. In progress now are Mozart's Coronation Mass and Vesperae Solennes de Confessore, as well as Gabrielli's Jubilateo Deo. Special arrangements of Christmas carols by Haymo Taeuber are also included in the program.

No auditions are necessary. For further information, phone 624-2838.

Autograph party to be given

A book signing party will be held Saturday, Oct. 9 at 3 p.m. at the offices of Demeter, 229 Seventeenth Street, Pacific Grove, to honor the publication of Bettina Aptheker's fourth book, Woman's Legacy.

Her book is a collection of essays focusing on the history of Afro-American women. She proposes in the book a historical connection between Afro-American liberation and women's emancipation in which each depends upon the other for success.

Aptheker, the coordinator of women's studies at the University of California, Santa Cruz, has instructed classes at Monterey Peninsula College.

Free. Open to the public. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided. For further information, phone 373-6615.

Tor House opens its doors for annual festival Oct. 8-10

The fourth annual Robinson Jeffers Tor House Festival is planned Friday through Sunday, Oct. 8-10. Tor House is at 26304 Ocean View Drive, Carmel.

The festival will commence with a free beach picnic Friday at noon on Stewart's Cove at the south end of Carmel Point. Entertainment will include poetry readings and a treasure hunt. Written clues for the treasure hunt will be distributed at the picnic. All of the clues are quotations from the poetic works of Jeffers. The treasure, buried somewhere in the vicinity of Carmel Point, is an item of "gustatory bonhomie having a modest but tangible value," according to the festival's honorary chairman, Fred Farr.

Guests are asked to bring their own lunch and refreshments. The annual poetry walk to Monastery Beach begins at the conclusion of the picnic.

A champagne reception at Tor House, Saturday from 4:30-6:30 p.m., will be followed by a theater dinner at La Playa Hotel, Carmel, at 7 p.m. A special surprise event is promised for the champagne reception. A stage performance arranged by David Hughes will enterain guests at the dinner. Tickets are $75 and include dinner.

A highlight of the festival will be a gala picnic/auction Sunday, Oct. 10, in the gardens of La Playa Hotel. The Mariachi Mixtlan Band will be featured. Master of Ceremonies will be Gus Arriola, well known Carmel cartoonist and creator of Gordo. Tickets are $20.

The program will include an auction of unusual items such as a "hawk" by Pacific Grove sculptor Douglas Downs who is also the sculptor of the Annual Tor House Award; a cartoon by Mr. Ariola; autographed copies of books by Jack London plus several "suprise" items. A set of 12 watercolor prints by Salvador Dali, which represent Dante's Divine Comedy, signed by the artist will also be auctioned. A special performance of Jeffers' works will be given on the terrace above the gardens by David Hughes. Point home. The main unit (above) and Hawk Tower were built entirely by the hands of Jeffers. Tor House Foundation will host a fund-raising gala Friday through Sunday, Oct. 8-10, including a tour of the house, a beach picnic, seminars, a champagne reception and a barbecue.

Seminars will be held at La Playa Hotel on Saturday and Sunday. Admission to each seminar is $5. An exhibit of Jeffers' manuscripts and materials, on loan from the Gleeson Library of the University of San Francisco, will be open free of charge Friday and Saturday at La Playa Hotel.

Proceeds from the festival will be used toward the acquisition and preservation of Tor House, Hawk Tower and gardens.

Special docent-led tours of Tor House and Hawk Tower will be given Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. and at 9 and 10 a.m. Sunday. Tickets are $10. Tickets for an all inclusive package, which entitles admission to all events are $90 for members and $100 for non-members. For house tour reservations, phone 624-1813.

Showhouse to preview Pebble Beach home

The third Hidden Valley Designers Showhouse will be held at Heatherhedge in Pebble Beach from Oct. 9-31st, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

Heatherhedge is a beautifully landscaped, French Provincial estate, set among tall pines overlooking Pebble Beach golf course and the Lodge on the southeast corner of 17-Mile Drive and Palmero Way. Heatherhedge boasts an authentic Japanese tea house.

The Showhouse is sponsored by Friends of Hidden Valley, a group of men and women interested in furthering the aims of Hidden Valley Music Seminars, a performing arts institute providing advanced training for talented young musicians, singers, and dancers in the areas of opera, musical theater, and orchestral performance. All proceeds will go for the benefit of Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

The interior designers selected to transform the Showhouse include: Michelle Pheasant Design, Inc.; Nelle Currie, ASID & Assoc.; Beth Danysh and Donald L. Maxcy of Design Associates; Richard/Charles Associates; Kay Harrington Interiors, Inc.; Gayle Holmes Interiors with Phyllis Lapham; Jackie Hubbard and Vicky Yakobovich of Creative Designs; T. Scott Moore Interior Designs; Dee Robertson Interiorts, NHFL; Rita Seger, ASID; Oliver White, ASID; Agnes Montgomery Heeter; Kitchens and Baths, Etc.; and Robert Reinkens of Flowers, Ltd., Pebble Beach.

A boutique with unusual items for sale will be available at Heatherhedge as well as box lunches and beverages.

Admission tickets to the Showhouse are $5. Pebble Beach entrance fees will be waived for ticket-holders. For shuttle service, park at the tennis courts. A 20 percent discount for groups of 20 or more is offered. Children under the age of nine will not be admitted.

Tickets may be purchased in Carmel at the How-To-Do-Anything Bookshop on Ocean at Monte Verde or at Countrywide Crafts in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel Valley; in Monterey at the Record Cove, 1523 Alvarado; in Pacific Grove at Lily Walker Music and Records, 169 Fountain Ave. and in Pebble Beach at Flowers Ltd., across from the Lodge.

Tickets are also available by mailing a check and self-addressed envelope to Friends of Hidden Valley (Heatherhedge), Box 116, Carmel Valley, CA, 93924. For further information and local ticket outlets, phone 624-7042 or 659-3115.

Loran Speck's still life paintings to be exhibited at Zantman Galleries

Zantman Art Galleries will give an opening night reception Saturday, Oct. 9 from 5-8 p.m. for artist Loran Speck in conjunction with an exhibit of Speck's new work.

Speck was born in California, studied business and science at Oregon State University and later received some formal art training at the Academy of Arts in San Francisco.

His subject is still life, and he suffuses his paintings with rich, earthy, muted color. The 18th and 19th century still life artists often painted on smooth wooden panels; Speck uses a more contemporary material — masonite — to which he applies many coats of gesso, sanding between each one to produce a surface having virtually no texture.

He then applies his paint, as the Old Masters did, in many successive, thin, transparent layers. The completed painting is finished with coats of a dull varnish. The ultimate effect of this laborious, delicate technique is one of translucent, glowing luster that can be likened to certin semi-precious stones such as amber, carnelian, agate and the more earthy shades of jade.

Speck's paintings have been featured at Zantman Art Galleries for the past eight years. Over these years, a steady improvement in techique and composition has been noticeable. This year's show is the first to feature Speck alone (previous shows were shared with his brother, Gene Speck, also an artist) and is a very important event for the young artist.

The public is welcome at the reception. Zantman Art Galleries are at Sixth and Mission, Carmel. For further information, phone 624-8314.

CHERRIES AND PEWTER Cup is the title of one of Loran Speck's new paintings to be exhibited Saturday, Oct. 9 at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel. There will be a reception for the artist from 5-8 p.m. at the gallery. The public is invited.

'Annie Hall' tops film bill this week

Japanese and Yugoslavian releases as well as vintage Woody Allen will be offered by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society this week as part of its fall schedule.

Special Treatment, a Yugoslavian release, in Serbo-Croation with subtitles, is a whimsical farce with a side-splitting ending about a crank doctor in charge of a "drying out" clinic for alcoholics.

Special Treatment will screen at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 7.

Annie Hall, directed by and starring Woody Allen is a semi-autobiographical look at the "nervous romance" between Allen and Diane Keaton, who of course plays Annie Hall.

This Academy Award winner for Best Picture is a funny and endearing look at modern romance. Carol Kane and Shelly Duvall co-star.

Annie Hall will screen at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8-10.

Hara Kiri, directed by Masaki Kobayashi, attacks blind, arbitrary adherence to tradition at the expense of human values, a problem the director sees existing in modern Japan as well as the film's 17th century setting.

The story concerns a samurai out to destroy the honor of the clan, that, as an example to those who would shame the samurai code, forced his son-in-law to commit an agonizing ritual suicide. Sight and Sound called Hara Kiri "suspenseful and chilling."

Hara Kiri will screen at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 13.

All three films will be shown in the Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren Street, Monterey. General admission is $3.50, $2.75 for students, seniors and military and $2 for Film Society members and children.

For further information, phone 659-4795.

Museum seeks art works from 1925-1945

Based on the popularity and positive response to last year's exhibition of paintings by early (1875-1925) Monterey area artists, the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art has asked Kent Seavey, the first show's curator, to continue the chronological survey of the Peninsula's creative output in an exhibition this winter that will cover the years 1925-1945.

Scheduled for a six week showing from November into December, the exhibit will concentrate on major art figures and movements associated with the development of the Monterey Guild, the Carmel Art Association, the New Deal arts programs and individual efforts by local artists working in both traditional and modernist modes.

The museum is looking for lost murals, prints, posters and other works produced during the period 1925-1945 as well as photographs of artists at work on their projects. Anyone with knowledge of the era and its product should phone, 372-7591.

Booths available for bazaar

Space is now available for prospective sellers at the annual Christmas Bazaar at Stilwell Hall, Saturday, Oct. 30. The bazaar is sponsored by the Fort Ord Health Service's Auxiliary.

Anyone can set up a table for a return to the Auxiliary of 15 percent of their sales, used to benefit the medical facilities at Fort Ord, and a $5 space fee to help defray the cost of putting on the bazaar.

Any non-profit organization wishing to raise money for a welfare project may have a space for the $5 fee only. An extensive variety of items, including arts and crafts, plants, or food may be offered for sale.

For further information, phone 663-0664 or 899-0752.

Annual antique show will open in Monterey

The Monterey History and Art Association will present its sixth annual Antiques Show Friday through Sunday, Oct. 15-17 at the Monterey Conference Center.

Featured will be four exquisite miniature rooms, first time on tour from the Winterthur Museum in Winterthur, Delaware. Eugene Kupjack, master craftsman and world-famous miniaturist, will appear in person to comment on his work.

Antiques will be exhibited by 40 or more California dealers from throughout the state.

Exhibits will include silver, porcelain, crystal, glass, precious jewels, furnishings, rugs, books and more.

Costume curator Jeanne Graham will present a tableau of antique lace, costumes and fine textiles which her committee has dubbed "Lavender and Old Lace."

Monterey interior decorator Nell Curie, well-known for her work in the restoration and decoration of old adobe houses in this area, will do a decorator showcase room which should be of interest to California history buffs.

Kupjack, of Park Ridge, Illinois, has dedicated 50 years to the fascinating profession of miniatures. He describes himself as a "frustrated painter, frustrated gardener, furniture manufacturer, interior designer and set designer," but says that "miniature lends itself to all of them."

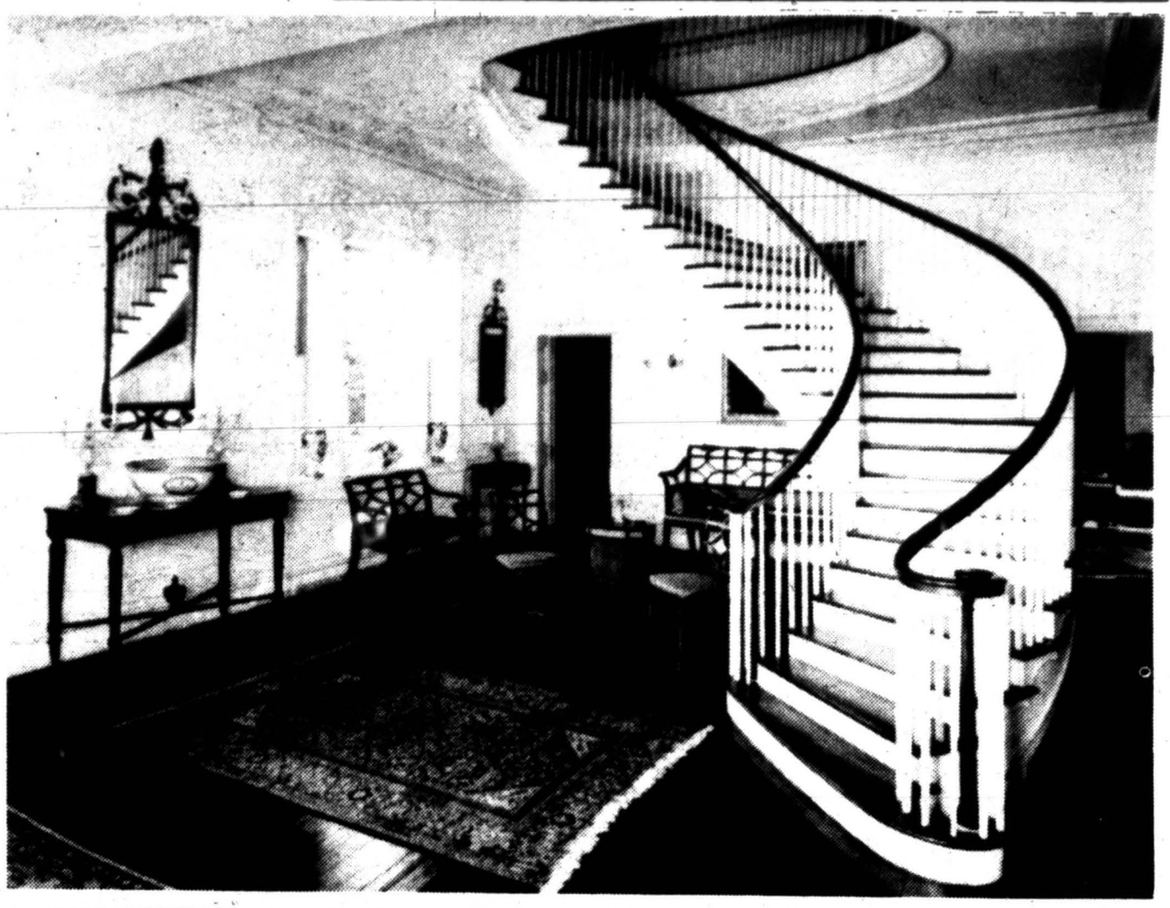
He and his son, Henry, who assists in this family operation of making miniatures, will accompany the exhibit and discuss the rooms created — Montmorenci Stair Hall, Blackwell Parlor, Queen Anne Dining Room, and Cecil Bedroom — all built on a one-inch-to-the-foot scale.

They are housed in illuminated cases measuring about 18 by 20 inches. One wall has been removed to permit viewing and to give the feeling of being within the room. Between 40 and 100 tiny pieces of furniture and decorative accessories make up each setting.

Krupjack embroidered the miniature crewel hangings and wall pictures. He is perhaps best known for his Thorne collection of 37 miniature American rooms now owned by the Art Institute of Chicago. In all, he has created over 500 miniature rooms. He was chosen to construct the Winterthur models because of his proven devotion to historical accuracy, meticulous craftsmanship and his outstanding reputation.

The Antiques Show will commence at noon each day, in the Serra Ballroom of Monterey Conference Center, Del Monte and Alvarado, Monterey. Admission will be $3.50 for adults, $2 for students and enlisted military personnel. There are also special rates for groups.

Tickets may be obtained in advance by writing Monterey History and Art Association, Box 805, Monterey, CA, 93940, or they may be purchased at the door during the run of the show. For further information, phone 649-3888.



MONTMORENCI Stair Hall, a miniature reproduction of a room in the Winterthur Museum in Delaware, by Eugene Kupjack, will be one of exhibits on display at the Monterey History and Art Association's sixth annual Antiques Show, Friday through Sunday, Oct. 15-17 at the Monterey Conference Center.

Happy days no more

JOHNNY (Bill Dodge) and Hester (Mary Looram) reminisce about happier times in Athol Fugards' family drama Hello and Goodbye, which will be staged Friday and Saturday, Oct. 8-9 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. For reservations, phone 624-7491.

New exhibit at 'Friends'

NORTH MEXICO*, 1961, photograph by Renate Ponsold from the exhibition Renate Ponsold/Robert Motherwell: Apropos Robinson Jeffers at the Friends of Photography, Sunset Center, Carmel. The exhibit, which will continue through Nov. 14, includes landscape photographs by Ponsold and monotypes by Motherwell created in response to the poetry of Robinson Jeffers.

Continues on outdoor stage

Serigraphs on display in Pebble Beach

SERIGRAPH OF Carlton Chairs, Cannes, is one of Carmel artist Carol Chapman's works on display at the SFB Morse Gallery at the Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach, through Nov. 14. Chapman's works include paintings, serigraphs and acrylic washes concentrating on beach themes and children at play.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the District Board, Carmel Sanitary District, at the District Office, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Building No. 26358, San Carlos Agency Building, Carmel Rancho Lane, P.O. Box 221428, Carmel, California 93922, until 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, October 21, 1982, at which time they will be publicly opened and read for performing work as follows:

Removal and replacement of 1028 L.F. ² 8" sanitary sewer located at North Carmelo Street between Second and Fourth Avenues and Second Avenue Between North Carmelo Street and North Camino Real together with removal and replacement of five (5) sanitary sewer manholes at various locations in the city of Carmel.

This work shall be done in accordance with the Specifications therefore adopted, to which special reference is hereby made.

Pursuant to the Statutes of the State of California, the District Board had adopted the general prevailing rates for overtime and legal holidays in the locality in which the work is to be performed determined by the State Director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

It shall be incumbent upon the successful bidder to pay not less than the minimum hourly wages required by said Schedule of Wage Determinations to be paid to various laborers and mechanics employed directly upon the site of the work. In the event that any change in the above rates is made, said changed rates shall apply to this public project without adjustment in bid price.

All proposals or bids shall be accompanied by a cashier's or certified check payable to the order of the Carmel Sanitary District amounting to ten percent of the bid, or by a bond in said amount and payable to said District signed by the bidder and a corporate surety. Said check shall be forfeited or said bond shall become payable to said District in case the bidder depositing the same does not, within fifteen days after written notice that the contract has been awarded to him: (a) enter into a contract with the District and (b) furnish a certificate of insurance, a bond of faithful performance and a labor and material bond as described in the Specifications.

The District reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bid or in the bidding.

The results of the bidding will be reported to the District Board within thirty (30) days of the date of bid opening at which time the District may award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder as so reported; however, said District Board reserves its right to reject any or all bids and to waive irregularities of any bids.

No bidder shall withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) calendar days after the date set by the District Board for the opening thereof.

The work is to be completed within 45 consecutive calendar days.

Specifications and proposal forms may be secured at no charge from Carmel Sanitary District, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, San Carlos Agency Building, Carmel, California 93922.

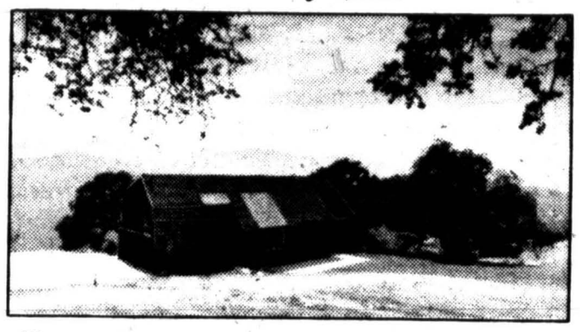
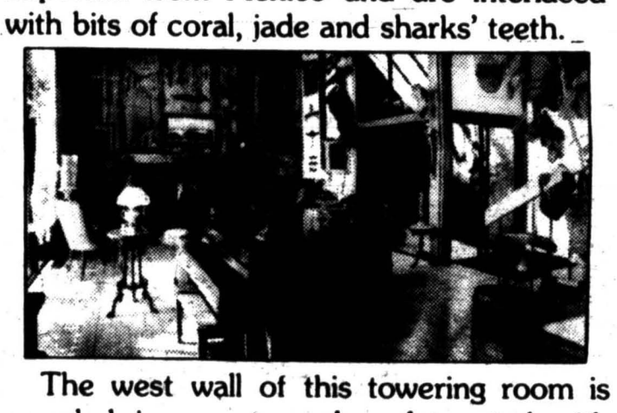
RIDGEREST
In the Sky Ranch Estates

Far above the upper Carmel Valley, riding the Tularicitos Ridge between it and the Cachagua, stands Ridgerest, a never-to-be forgotten home. The house is on 10 incredibly beautiful acres and sits on a green lawn about 200 feet below the entry road.



From the road one sees a broad and high barn-like facade, faced partly in wide board-and-batten, partly in shingles, with 3 enormous skylights in the steep slanting roof. A gigantic custom-built carriage lamp flanks the recessed front door, and other lights make pools beneath the oaks that dot the landscape.

Inside that door is a vaulted room rising to 22 feet at the zenith. At the 17-foot level an enormous fir beam traverses the entire length of the house, an unusual but effective support for the roof. At your right is a flower-filled atrium with glass on 2 sides, a fountain, and a floor of aggregate which runs on through the entry and to the kitchen. Its small pebbles are imported from Mexico and are interlaced with bits of coral, jade and sharks' teeth.



The west wall of this towering room is paneled in wormy cedar, decorated with artifacts that tell many stories. The fireplace is faced in aggregate and boast a mantel that once was part of a bridge in Big Sur. The south wall is floor to ceiling glass, covered with macrame draperies, opening to a vast vista of Santa Lucia Mountains. The east wall opens to a formal dining room and reaches up to a mezzanine guest bedroom above.

Left of the entry, a corridor leads back to the kitchen, passing enroute a guest closet and a half-bath papered with the working drawings of the house. The kitchen is old country, with an island counter set beneath a giant skylight, pots and pans hanging about, lighting ranging from dramatic to sexy and ideal appliances.

Upstairs is reached by an open staircase from the entrance. The balustrade is reinforcing bars, some of which terminate in the kitchen as pothooks, others which repeat in the bath rooms as towel rods, paper holders and other utilitarian poses. Upstairs are 2 very attractive bedrooms with 2-story closets, 2 paneled and dramatically lighted bathrooms, a mezzanine office and a library-guest room overlooking the gigantic living room.

A house-long deck stretches along the south elevation, looking down into the Cachagua and the mountains beyond. This is a piece of the world that is yours alone, a modern island in the midst of primitive beauty, a theatrical setting where the elements play their changing patterns for you alone. It's $394,500, ten acres of Eden with an inspired centerpiece. Photos by Steve Gann

These include memories of her Austrian grandfather, of her flight to France from Vienna with her parents as a child (she was one of the lucky ones to get out), of her attitude to life and love today. Don't get the wrong idea. "Concert Cabaret" is not one of those heavy trips back into the past. Ms. Schlamme may have a few scars, but first and foremost she is an entertainer. An ironic sense of humor pervades the evening; an atmosphere of relaxation is created almost at once and Ms. Schlamme, with the help of a superb accompanist, Steven Blier, achieves the sort of rapport with her audience on a very personal level that only a truly fine artist is capable of creating. One comes away with a feeling of warmth and genuine affection for this great lady.

A visually exciting show is the Chinese Magic Circus of Taiwan! This production features the acrobats, feats of daring and balance, Kung Fu, juggling and tumbling, magic tricks, illusions and costumed dancing.

Flamboyant and incredibly colorful costumes dating back many centuries combined with the mesmeric beat of ancient Chinese musical instruments, set the background for a whirlwind performance that will leave the audience breathless. The Chinese Magic Circus of Taiwan is on their fifth tour of the United States.

The grace and precision of the acrobats are the triumph of years of dedicated training and discipline, but their art was formed by centuries of tradition. Chinese acrobatics are in fact more than a series of stunts. Most of the acts were created and performed in China as far back as 200 B.C. and have always been an integral part of the Chinese culture and the arts.

Many of these acts demonstrate harmony between mind and body — an ancient concept in the Orient. They have appeared with Liberace at the Las Vegas Hilton as well as Lake Tahoe and Reno for a number of years and recently they appeared for 22 performances in New York and Madison Square Garden during Christmas and New Year. Besides these appearances they have also been seen on the Merv Griffin, Dinah Shore and Mike Douglas shows.

Humor in music is relatively rare — after all, composing is a serious business. But there have been master composers — Mozart, Ibert, Walton — who have managed to convey more or less subtle humor in "digging" at colleagues, situations, or just music itself.

In music, complete mastery and insight are prerequisites, then theatrical basics, split-second timing and the gift to convey this combination of musicianship and infectious jollity to audiences who have nearly always "seen it all before." Such a group are The Brass Band who combine an entertaining blend of intelligent slapstick and consummate musicianship. That mixture of comic and clever makes the show one of the most memorable of its kind on the stage today.

Often referred to as a musical Marx Brothers, The Brass Band has appeared throughout the country and their lauded performances have garnered them a special place in the musical world. They are marvelous musicians who can show you the wit and charm of the music and even dare to be a bit sacriligious in their approach to some traditional compositions. An evening with them will prove a special treat.

Dates for these preformances are as follows: Einstein, The Practical Bohemian, Oct. 16; Martha Schlamme, Nov. 17; The Chinese Circus, Jan. 20, 1983 and The Brass Band, April 9, 1983. Tickets are available at the director's office of Sunset Center. All seats are reserved. For more information please call the center 624-3996.
